GREEK ROOPS, NEAR MUTINY, HURL INSULTS AT THE KING

Soldiers, Reaching Piraeus
From Asia Minor Front, Land Contrary to Orders
and Engage in Demonstration Against Constantine; Parade in Streets.

ABDICATION OF RULER OPENLY DISCUSSED

Newspapers Demand the Return of Venizelos; Typhus
Said to Be Raging in Smyrna, Which Is Overflowing With Refugees.

By the Associated Press.
ATHENS, Sept. 11.—M. Theotokis, the Greek High Commissioner, who has just returned from Smyrna, announces the Greek evacuation of that city is complete.

The first troops have reached Piraeus from the former Greek front in Asia Minor in a mutinous mood. They paraded the streets in small and large groups, in a demonstration against King Constantine, many of them shouting insults.

Five transports bearing troops had received instructions from the War Department to land the soldiers on the islands of the Aegean, but the troops are declared to have forced the Captains to proceed to Piraeus where the soldiers landed despite orders to the contrary.

The possible abdication of Constantine is being openly discussed, and the newspapers are demanding the return of Venizelos. The Royalists, however, are reacting vigorously, and insisting on the choice of Gen. Metaxas as Premier, to which the King may be forced to agree unless Triantafyllakos succeeds in forming a cabinet. In Venizelist and other political circles it is considered that a Metaxas cabinet actually would mean a military dictatorship.

TYPHUS IS RAGING IN FALLEN CITY

By the Associated Press.
ADANA, Asia Minor, Sept. 11.—The Turkish forces which took possession of Smyrna Saturday and captured the Greek troops there, are now peacefully and without resistance, according to advices from that city. Turkish columns arrived in the outskirts in the morning but awaited reinforcements for two hours. Airplanes in the meantime flew over the city, dropping leaflets reading:

"The Turkish army soon will deliver the city of Smyrna. The population is advised to remain calm and to support the Turkish cause by joining the Nationalist movement."

A great crowd of Turks marched out of the city as soon as they read the proclamation and went to meet the Turkish troops. In the afternoon the Second Division entered Smyrna. The commander immediately sought the allied authorities and assured them that no one was endangered. The Second Division was followed in the evening by the Fifth Division and all the remaining Greek forces were captured. Only about 200 officers, who fled hastily in the morning, escaped.

Smyrna is overflowing with refugees, who are without food or shelter, and typhus is raging. The Turks immediately sent out a call for doctors, medicines and nurses, and neighboring countries have been asked to send in food.

TURKISH SUCCESSES ALARM FRANCE, ITALY

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 11.—Sweeping the Greek forces from Asia Minor in two weeks, the Turkish Nationalists under Mustafa Kemal Pasha, have won a victory at least partly nullifying their losses through the World War. Thus is created a situation demanding the immediate adoption of a policy by Great Britain, France and Italy.

France and Italy are accused in some quarters with having not only encouraged the Kemalists, but of supplying munitions, although it is asserted now they are becoming alarmed at the extent of the Turkish successes.

Italy's concern is said to have been expressed in a freshly expressed desire for a preliminary conference of the Allies at Venice to consider the situation, but this finds no favor in London.

ATTEMPT MADE IN HOUSE TO IMPEACH DAUGHERTY FOR 'CRIMES AND MISDEMEANORS'

Resolution, However, Is Referred to Judiciary Committee and Is Believed to Be Disposed of Finally.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Demand for impeachment of Attorney-General Daugherty for "high crimes and misdemeanors" was made in the House today by Representative Keller, Republican of Minnesota, who sought immediate action on a resolution for an investigation.

By an overwhelming vote, however, the House referred the question to the Judiciary Committee, thus, in the opinion of leaders, disposing of it finally.

Daugherty Grins When Told of Demand for Impeachment.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Attorney-General Daugherty grinned broadly when shown a copy of an Associated Press bulletin from Washington telling of the move of Representative Keller, Minnesota, to impeach him, but offered no comment.

(Copyright, 1922.)
MOSCOW, Sept. 11.—The distressing incident of the overweight dancers in the Russian ballet, which resulted in the retirement of Director Mordkin, formerly Pavlova's partner in America, after he had tried to discharge the heaviest, has been followed by a strike of the musicians. The musicians want higher wages. Also, they say that they don't like the "atmosphere" of their surroundings.

The management has filled the places of the missing with substitutes.

BATHING SUIT WORN BY WOMAN GOLFER DURING PRACTICE AT GLEN ECHO

DESPITE THE STEADY DOWNPOUR

yesterday, all of the Western women's golf tourney entrants played a round or two of the Glen Echo course. Most of the women played in sport clothes and heavy sweaters, which grew heavier as they absorbed the rain.

"Soaked to the skin" was an oft-repeated phrase about the clubhouse during the day.

Miss Carrie Kuhnert of Chicago, however, played her round of golf in a bathing suit. She was dressed for the occasion, donning a sleeveless California bathing suit, rubber cap and bathing slippers.

The contract, which will be in effect for a period of one year, provides for a return to work of the miners at their old wages, and for a return to work of the operators at their old wages.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—A sweeping embargo on freight was declared today by most of the Eastern railroads, so that all available engines and cars could be thrown into service to bring anthracite coal into New York. The Erie, Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley and New York Central have ordered practically all freight except foodstuffs from connecting lines from the West held at connection points.

The only craft to approve the plan, which was sponsored by the Typographical Union, was the Brotherhood of Bookbinders, the report disclosed.

BODY OF SECOND GIRL IN SACK IN MISSOURI RIVER

Last One Discovered on Sand Bar at Napoleon, Mo., 31 Miles East of Kansas City, Where First Was Found.

MAN ARRESTED IN KANSAS CITY

Taken Into Custody After Telling Alleged Conflicting Stories About Missing Daughters.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Sept. 11.—The body of another girl who had been murdered was found late yesterday in a sack washed upon a sandbar in the Missouri River near Napoleon, Mo., thirty-one miles east of Kansas City. Frank Brickley, a fisherman, found the body. It was crumpled in a gunny sack. It appeared to be the body of a girl about 12 years old. It was clothed in a gingham dress, tied around the waist by a white sash.

The circumstances surrounding the finding of the body yesterday tally almost exactly with the finding of a girl's body in the Missouri River near the Milwaukee Railroad bridge in Kansas City, Sept. 4. The two bodies, both in gunny sacks, showed evidences of an assault. The body of the girl found at Napoleon was sent to an undertaker in Lexington, Mo., early today. The Coroner said it had been in the water for such a length of time that he believed it almost impossible to identify the girl. Two fishermen found the body of the first girl near the Milwaukee bridge. It was in a sack and was washed in the mud.

Tony Dinello, 47 years old, has been arrested in Kansas City, Kan., in connection with the investigation of the previous murder.

Early today three Kansas City, Kan., detectives, in company with Henry T. Zimmer, Chief of Police, called at the home of the Dinellos. Mrs. Dinello and a son, Ernest, 7 years old, were at the house. Mrs. Dinello was nervous at the approach of the police. She speaks broken English and the officers could not question her. She and her son, Ernest, will be taken to the undertaker's in Kansas City, Mo., in an attempt to identify the body of the first girl found.

Dinello was planning to leave the city, according to Fred Palmer, his employer. Dinello for 16 years had been an employee of the Kaw Boilers Works. He was regarded by the company and his fellow workers as an industrious and hard working man. Last week Dinello, for the first time, asked the company for 30 or 60-day leave of absence, according to Palmer. This was granted to him. He told them he was going to Colorado to visit a daughter.

BELGIUM REJECTS GERMAN PRIORITY PAYMENT OFFER

Representatives Leave Berlin After Refusing Proposal to Pay Over Period of 18 Months.

ANOTHER CRISIS ON BOURSE EXPECTED

Conversations Ended Automatically When Germany Fails to Offer Six Months Guarantees.

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World. (Copyright, 1922, by the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.)

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—Belgium has refused Chancellor Wirth's offer to pay Belgium's priority payment over a period of 18 months. Consequently, the Belgian representatives here went home last night.

It was a condition of the moratorium that Germany guarantee these payments in a manner satisfactory to Belgium. M. Delacroix, Belgian member of the Reparations Commission, said:

"Our mandate was to arrange for six months' payments, not 18, so the conversations ended automatically when Germany offered no six months' guarantees. We go to Brussels today and to Paris tomorrow night."

Asked whether he thought there would be further negotiations, perhaps such as would lead to an agreement similar to the Stines-Liberman contract with France, he said that was for the Reparations Commission to decide. He will have only a negative report to make.

It is believed here that the departure of the Belgians without final agreement indicates that the end of the year may bring another crisis on the bourse, despite the hopeful attitude which has prevailed since the signing of the Stines-Liberman agreement.

The attitude of the "D" banks, Germany's leading financial institutions, which are backing Stines, makes the situation more difficult.

They contend that the gold reparations should not be handled by the Reichsbank, but by Belgium, even on the 18 months' basis.

Stines and these banks are preparing for a financial coup which will give industry complete control over the German economy. Meanwhile, the Reichsbank is losing 4,000,000,000 paper marks a day. Money is becoming rapidly demoralized, and it is predicted here, will leave Germany in a state of financial chaos.

MRS. HARDING'S CONDITION APPEARS TO HAVE IMPROVED

Wife of President Had Less Restless Night; Complications Subsiding, Says Official Bulletin.

DECISION AS TO OPERATION DEFERRED

Cabinet Members and Friends Also Declare Condition of Patient Is More Encouraging.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Improvement in the condition of Mrs. Harding, which began yesterday, continued throughout the night and the forenoon, and physicians in attendance deferred the operation which has been under consideration.

An official bulletin issued shortly after 10 a. m. said the wife of the President had spent a less restless night, that complications were subsiding and that generally her condition was improved. It also announced the decision to defer an operation.

The bulletin was supplemented by statements made by visitors to the White House.

Secretary Wallace, who called shortly after 8 o'clock, saying that Mrs. Harding had spent a fairly restful night. Secretary Weeks, who called later, said he had been informed that the night had been the best the patient had had since her condition became alarming.

Dr. Mayo Joins Specialists.

Refreshed somewhat by a night's sleep, the President continued to keep in constant touch with his wife's bedside and with the attending physicians. The presence at the White House of the entire consulting staff, made complete yesterday by the arrival of Dr. Charles Mayo, specialist from Rochester, Minn., seemed to strengthen the hope that Mrs. Harding would successfully pass through the present crisis.

An official White House bulletin issued yesterday said that Mrs. Harding's condition at 10:05 a. m. today, said:

"Mrs. Harding's condition at 9:30 a. m.—temperature 99.4; pulse 96; respiration 30."

"Night less restless. Complications subsiding. General appearance indicates improvement. Operative procedure deferred."

"C. E. Sawyer."

An engrossing stream of close friends of the President and Mrs. Harding visited the White House during the day. The President personally met most of them, and was reported to be bearing up under the strain.

Among those who called was Will H. Hays, former Postmaster-General and Republican national chairman at the time of Mr. Harding's election to the presidency.

Business at the executive offices was practically at a standstill, only routine matters being transacted by the clerical force. The President remained away from his office and Secretary Christian, who arrived at the White House early this morning, remained during the morning near the President, instead of coming to his office.

Many Messages of Sympathy.

Messages of sympathy, all expressing the hope that Mrs. Harding would be restored to health, continued to arrive, many of them from leaders in government and private affairs in other countries.

Brigadier-General Sawyer, the family physician, is understood to have informed some of the President's close friends today that Mrs. Harding was "brighter and stronger, and there is a chance this attack might clear up as the previous attacks."

Impressions gathered from Dr. Sawyer, these friends said, was that the chances "rather favored recovery."

Operation Decision Postponed.

The decision as to an operation was postponed last night in view of the "indications of a slight improvement" noted in the bulletin issued by Dr. C. E. Sawyer. White House physicians, at 9 o'clock last night, the bulletin said Mrs. Harding had spent a fairly comfortable day yesterday. Friends who remained at the White House until a late hour said on leaving that Mrs. Harding was then resting, relatively free from pain, and still

BANKER ALLEGES HE WAS DUPED IN MARRIAGE

Beverly D. Harris of New York, Seeking Annulment, Says Wife Posed as Daughter of Stacker Lee.

SHE FIGURED IN TRUNK SEIZURE CASE HERE

Husband Asserts She Represented Self to Be of Good Family, but Instead Was Known in Under World.

Charges that his wife, at the time of their marriage in St. Louis in 1916, falsely represented herself to be a member of one of the best families in the south, when in fact, he states, she was the paramour of an alleged gambler in Memphis, Tenn., and the associate of disreputable characters in the underworld there, are contained in the action for the annulment which Beverly D. Harris, a former vice president of the National City Bank of New York, is bringing against his wife there.

Mrs. Harris, who is described in the annulment papers as "Eleanor B. L. Harris," and who, before her marriage, was known as Miss Elaine Lee, figured in an episode at Hotel Statler here last January, when a Sheriff's watchman was placed on guard at the door of her room to watch her baggage, which had been attached in a suit for $100.

Separation Made Known in 1920. The fact that Harris and his wife had separated was made known to the public in May, 1920, a few days after she had returned to an attempt by strange men to abduct her while she was riding in a taxicab through Central Park in New York City.

She also made mention of the separation when in commenting here on the attachment against her baggage she remarked that she could not pay the sum she was being sued for because her husband had allowed her "only $18,000 a year under a separation agreement."

Although Mrs. Harris was served with the summons and complaint in her husband's action at the Hotel Baltimore on June 3 and has served an answer and "a special defense" denying his charges, none of the papers has been filed in court. Lawyers representing Harris said all of the papers in the case that were prepared up to date would be filed today when Harris would apply for an injunction to enforce the payment from prosecuting four actions in the municipal court to enforce the installment of $500 each under the separation agreement.

Met Her in Houston in 1916. According to Harris' complaint, he was introduced to Miss Lee in the Rice Hotel, in Houston, Tex., in February, 1916. She was then characterized, he says, by Mrs. Hoses A. Harris, supposedly her aunt, and told him, he alleges, she was the daughter of Stacker Lee of Memphis, whose family owned the famous line of Lee steamers on the Mississippi River.

Miss Lee, according to Harris, also represented herself to be an innocent and chaste young woman and the niece of Eli Raynor, to whom she referred, according to Harris, as a man of prominent family and high social and business standing in Memphis.

Harris and Miss Lee were married in St. Louis on July 21, 1918. In suing to annul that marriage Harris now alleges he discovered after he and his wife had agreed to live apart, she was not the daughter of Stacker Lee, who died a bachelor, that she had been a frequent of questionable places in Memphis before he met her and that for years she had been known to the police and underworld of Memphis as the sweetheart of Eli Raynor, described in a Memphis police official's affidavit as a "local gambler and proprietor of the Victor, a disreputable hotel located on Beale avenue, Memphis, Tenn."

Confusion As to Parentage. He states he discovered as the result of a special investigation his wife was the daughter of Samuel C. Lee of Dover, Tenn., who died in 1917. This alleged discovery of his wife's real parentage leads to more confusion. According to Harris, his wife told him she was born in 1898 or 1899 and that the death of her father as revealed by court records in Tennessee.

The same investigation, Harris states, revealed his wife was christened Samuella Lee, that she then changed it to Susie Ella and finally adopted the name Elaine.

Harris produces a communication purporting to come from Mrs. W. J. Corcoran, Mrs. Harris' sister of Indianapolis, Miss., in which Mrs. Corcoran states Mrs. Harris was originally named Samuella, was called Susie by her family and adopted Elaine when she came out of school. Yet Mrs. Harris in her answer denies she was ever named Samuella and claims she had a half sister by that name.

When Harris first started to investigate his wife's past he alleges he received the following warning from her in a letter dated April 14, 1931:

"I swear by God that you will pay for it with your life, but not by my hands."

Received Another Threat. On May 7, 1932, Harris alleges he received the following telegram which purported to be from his

OPEN VERDICT RETURNED AT JOHNSON INQUEST

Disagreement Between Family and Hospital Authorities as to Special Nurse Disclosed.

An open verdict was returned by the Coroner today in the death Saturday at Alexian Brothers Hospital of Richard M. Johnson, 80 years old, whose body was found in a courtyard below his room on the third floor. Coroner Richter said that he was unable to determine from the evidence whether Johnson, who was familiarly known as "Col. Dick," had jumped from the window or had fallen accidentally. No one was in his room at the time.

Testimony at the inquest disclosed a disagreement between members of the family and those in charge of the hospital as to whether "Col. Dick" should have had the continuous attention of a special nurse.

The hospital attaches said that the special nurse, provided when Johnson was taken to the hospital last Tuesday, had been ordered discontinued by members of the family. This was denied by members of the family, who said that they had requested hospital authorities to use their own discretion in that matter.

Brother Benedict, a general nurse, testified that he had left Johnson's room a few minutes to dispose of soiled linen and discovered the patient gone when he re-entered the room. He had been ordered to go to a window on the previous day.

Johnson was operated on for a throat ailment two months ago and had been in the hospital since. According to testimony, it was said by members of the family that on last Tuesday, while at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Nellie Henson of 117 Central avenue, Clayton, Johnson repeatedly blew a whistle and cried out that he was in need of medical attention which he said was being denied him. He was taken to the hospital for treatment for warding off the arteries. The coroner found that death resulted from a cerebral hemorrhage due to fracture of the skull.

The funeral will be this afternoon, conducted by the George Washington Masonic Lodge, with burial at Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Johnson was brother-in-law, W. J. Corcoran, prosperous Mississippi planter and respected member of the community in which he lived. "Myself and wife have just heard of the horrible thing you contemplate doing and I want you to know right now that as surely as my name is Corcoran and yours is Harris and as surely as my little daughter's name is Elaine and that there is an Almighty God above us, if you do this thing you will answer to me."

Harris proceeded with his investigation and discovered, he alleges, Corcoran did not write the telegram but that it was written by his wife, who signed her brother-in-law's name in an effort to prevent him continuing his investigations.

In her answer Mrs. Harris denies ever receiving the telegram and denies she ever lived an immoral life.

Regarding her marriage she says, "as the result of the ardent courting of the plaintiff at Mineral Wells, and of plaintiff's lies if she did not consent to marry, she did consent to marry the plaintiff."

She Alleges Cruelty. After their marriage, she says her husband was cruel to her and that because of his abusiveness and habits of intoxication her life with him had been "filled with horrors."

She also charges he pointed a pistol at her head on various occasions and once while intoxicated lifted her from a sick bed and suspended her from a window on the tenth floor, threatening all the time to drop her.

Harris denied his wife's countercharges and quotes from several ardent letters he says she sent him to prove he did not force her into a marriage and was not treating her cruelly.

According to Harris, he and his wife separated in July, 1919. On Dec. 14, 1919, he alleges, she wrote him from the Hotel Plaza: "My one wish is a divorce with a settlement, or a legal separation with a settlement; as I shall never marry again, I do not wish alimony in either case."

ROBBER, WOUNDED IN STRUGGLE WITH JEWELER, DIES

Leo Giesecke, Police Character, Shot 11 Times by Edward Gotsch in Arcade Building Holdup.

MAN FOUND DEAD FROM BROKEN NECK IN ALLEY

Police Believe Victor Callewart Was Slain Elsewhere and Carried to Rear of 1025 Clark Avenue.

Victor Callewart, 48 years old, a widower who lived with his son and daughter at 3611 South Broadway, and who for 20 years had been a cooper at the St. Louis Cooperative Co., was found dead from a broken neck, lying on his back, in an alley in the rear of 1025 Clark avenue, about he left home from Central Police Station, at 10 o'clock last night.

An empty purse was found at his side and his pockets had been turned inside out, indicating that he had been robbed, but whether he was killed as a result of the robbery could not be determined by the police.

It appeared from mud on the palms of the hands that Callewart had fallen or had been thrown on his face and then had been turned over on his back. There was no evidence of a struggle, and the only other mark of violence was a deep cut over the left eye. Police are working on the theory that Callewart had been killed elsewhere and carried to the alley.

It was learned that Callewart was at the home of his sister, Mrs. Elsie Weil, 4423 Louisiana avenue, from 3 to 8 p. m. yesterday, when he was going to work to visit "his girl," a married woman with four children living apart from her husband in the vicinity of Hickory and Rutgers streets. That was the last seen of him by his relatives.

Neither Samuel Gompers nor the 19 other officers of the Federation on the executive council made any official statement. Expressing their individual opinions, however, council members without exception were strongly opposed to a general strike, although they were unanimous in denouncing the injunction as a blow to the rail crafts and a threat to all organized labor.

Since then scores of telegrams have been received demanding the general strike.

Large employers of labor throughout the country have besieged the Federation officials with requests for assurance that their contracts with individual labor unions will not be canceled through any nation-wide walkout.

Denying the existence of such a conspiracy by the railway unions and demanding that Judge Wilkerson vacate the injunction, Attorney Richberg built up his defense on the ground the Government had failed to make a case and that the injunction obtained through misrepresentation for "ulterior and unlawful" motives.

Concerning the sabotage charges, Attorney Richberg said:

"The railway unions have not only agreed that perpetrators of any violence in connection with the strike should be harshly punished, but also have sought to co-operate with the proper authorities to prevent any illegal acts. The union leaders have time and again warned the membership against any lawlessness."

Conferences Held. Attorney-General Daugherty conferred last night with John W. H. Blackburn, Eastern assistant to Solicitor-General; James A. Fowler, special assistant in anti-trust prosecutions; Oliver E. Pagan, indictment expert and special assistant to the Attorney-General; A. C. McLaughlin and C. J. McGuire, legal aids; and Charles F. Cline, United States District Attorney in Chicago.

Many Government investigators who took part in the collection of evidence, were on hand to testify. Subpoena, it was said, might run into the hundreds, with indication that the hearings would last several days.

The scene of today's action was laid in the courtroom of former Judge Keneaw Mountain Landis, where the famous Standard Oil and I. W. W. cases were heard.

The constitutional rights of individuals would not be violated by making permanent the Government's temporary restraining order, Attorney-General Daugherty asserted in a brief comment prior to the court hearing.

"The Government takes the position," the Attorney-General said, "that if the injunction is made permanent as it now stands there will be no violation of the constitutional rights of the individual. The Government has sufficient evidence to prove our case."

MAN SHOT IN HOLDUP OF SALOON IN COUNTY

Place at Brentwood Robbed Half an Hour After Holdup of Resort a Block Away.

One man was seriously wounded during an exchange of shots while four masked and armed men held up the soft drink saloon of Jerry Moreland, 900 North and South road, Brentwood, in St. Louis County, at 4 a. m. today.

The Moreland holdup was just 30 minutes after four men, of similar description, had held up a similar resort, operated by Andy Bosch, a block south of the Moreland place on the North and South road.

Ben Crockett of 2533 North Spring avenue, bartender at the Moreland resort, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he was alone in the front room this morning when one man armed with a pistol walked in. At the same time three men entered a winery in the rear through a side door. Moreland and eight men were in the winery.

When they were ordered to line up against a wall, Bert Hurt, who runs a soft drink saloon just north of Moreland's place, drew a revolver and began firing. One of the robbers shot Hurt twice with a sawed-off shotgun. About 50 buckshot struck Hurt, the first discharge striking his chest and abdomen and the second hitting him in the back.

Hurt fell to the floor. One of the robbers guarded him while another pointed a pistol at the other men as the third robber searched them. They obtained $80 from Hurt, $19 from Moreland and $35 from two other men.

Crockett said the four robbers ran north a short distance to a large touring car standing in the road. Hurt was treated by a Webster Groves physician and sent to Barnes Hospital, where his condition, it is said to be serious.

County authorities were told that the robbers obtained a revolver and $100 in cash during the holdup at the Bosch place.

Berlin Zoo to Close Oct. 1—March 15 (Correspondence of the Associated Press.) BERLIN, Aug. 20.—Facing bankruptcy, the management of the Berlin Zoological Gardens has decided to close the gates of the place to the public from Oct. 1 to March 15 next year. It is estimated that at least 4,000,000 marks would be required to tide over the winter if the zoo were kept open. Zoos in other parts of Germany already have been forced to take similar steps because of economic difficulties. Some fears are entertained for the possible injurious consequences of the winter economy arrangements, since the herding of various types of animals together will be necessitated.

THE ANNUAL FALL FESTIVAL OF the German People, which was to be held at the St. Charles road, scheduled for yesterday, was postponed until next Sunday because of unfavorable weather.

When Klor suddenly collapsed, members of the order went to his aid, and physicians were summoned. Death is believed to have resulted from apoplexy. He was a resident of East St. Louis for about 35 years. He leaves a widow and two sons, Williams S. and Charles A. Klor. The funeral will be at 2 p. m. Wednesday, with services in Odd Fellows' Temple.

The Glen Echo club has invited the public to attend the matches, with a score of 18, was the low medalist among the early competitors in the qualifying round of the women's Western Golf Association championship tournament here today. Ninety-eight women started this morning on the 18-hole journey for the right to enter match play in the four classes tomorrow.

Mrs. Mida, in scoring an 86, played good golf, especially on the last nine, which she made in 41 strokes. On the eighth hole she sank a putt from the edge of the green for a four. Her card: Out . . . 5 6 7 4 4 5 6 3—45 In . . . 4 5 6 4 5 5 4 4—41 86

Close behind Mrs. Mida came Miss Miriam Burns of Kansas City, the Missouri State champion, and one of the favorites for the championship, with an 89. Miss Burns played good golf all the way, as her card of 46-44 attests. Her score: Out . . . 4 5 6 4 5 4 5 3—45 In . . . 5 5 6 4 5 5 3 5—44 89

Miss Virginia Pep, who is representing Triple A in the tournament, and is one of St. Louis' hopes for the championship, had a qualifying score of 93, which undoubtedly will place her in the title fight for match play. Miss Pep had a 43 for the first nine and a 45 coming in. Her card: Out . . . 4 6 6 7 4 4 6 7—48 In . . . 4 6 5 4 5 5 4 5—45 93

Champion Makes a 93. Mrs. Melvin Jones of Chicago, the present champion, negotiated the 13 holes in 93, and is sure of a place in the title class. Mrs. Jones opened the tournament, teeing off with Miss Louise Funder of Youngstown, O. Mrs. Jones had a 43 for the first nine and a 46 coming in. Her card: Out . . . 5 5 6 5 5 5 4 5—49 In . . . 5 5 6 5 5 5 4 5—49 93

Of the 98 players paired 44 are from clubs in the St. Louis district. The players making the lowest 32 scores, including handicaps, ranging from 1 to 20 strokes, will qualify for the championship flight. The next 16 low scores will qualify to play for the Glen Echo trophy. Two additional classes of 16 players each also are provided. Thus, 80 of the 96 entrants will qualify for actual tournament play.

WRIT BLOCKS RECOUNT OF VOTES IN COUNTY

Judge McElhinney Rules Recounting Must Take Place Before Judicial Body.

A temporary injunction was granted by Circuit Judge McElhinney at Clayton today, restraining the canvassing board of St. Louis County from making a recount of the votes cast in the primary election for Democratic central committee in Central Township.

Judge McElhinney declared that the recount had to take place before a judicial body, and that the board, therefore, was not qualified to count the ballots.

At the request of Mrs. Julia W. Billups and John Comerford, the two defeated candidates, the board had ordered a recount. Frank L. Johnson and Al G. Bruce, the successful candidates, asked for a restraining order on Sept. 6, at which time the application was denied.

Last Friday, however, the day the board planned to begin its recount, Judge McElhinney set aside his denial of Johnson's application, and issued an order that the count be delayed until after a reconsideration of the petition. The case was presented last Saturday, and the injunction allowed today stands "until further order of the court."

Action on a petition for a temporary restraining order to prevent the officers of the Democratic Central Committee from certifying to the City Clerk the names of two candidates who were chosen by the committee last Thursday to fill vacancies in the Democratic ticket nominations, was postponed until next Thursday, pending amendments to the request. The vacancies in the nominations were candidates for Assistant Judge of the County Court for the First District, and Representatives to the State Legislature from the Third District. Raymond Walsh was named by the committee for the judgeship and Joseph C. A. Miller for the Legislature.

The petition, filed by James E. Hart and Joseph C. A. Miller, states that the meeting was not regular inasmuch as only five members attended. These members were said to be "anti-fusionists," or those not desiring to support the Clean Election Ticket composed of both Republicans and Democrats, while the five who were not present are said to support this ticket.

St. Louis County is strongly Republican and vacancies often occur in the Democratic nominations for lack of a candidate who will file for office.

SAFE STOLEN FROM OLIVE-ST. SHOE STORE

$900 Cash and $1100 in Papers Also Taken From Strongbox of an Auto Parts Firm.

Police are searching for a 200-pound safe, taken from the Newark Shoe Store at 706 Olive street, between 10 p. m. Saturday and 9:40 a. m. yesterday, by burglars who forced the front door of the place. With it went $238 that the manager, John J. Donnelly, of 4035 Scanlon place, locked in it before closing up Saturday night.

The theft was discovered when Donnelly was called to the store yesterday morning by Policeman Dunn, who found the door open while on his rounds. Police believe that an automobile was used to carry the safe away.

About $900 in cash and $1100 in checks and money orders were taken from the office safe of the Standard Auto Parts Co., 3921 Olive street, some time Saturday night or Sunday morning. About $15 in a cash register on top of the safe was overlooked. Half of a torn $1 bill, with serial number, was found on the floor.

The combination knob of a safe in the Fred Campbell Auto Supply Co.'s shop, 2606 Locust boulevard, was discovered at 5 p. m. yesterday to have been knocked off by burglars who entered the place through a second story window, after climbing on an adjoining building. They failed to reach the $55 the safe contained, but took automobile accessories, the value of which is being checked by Walter Ferrier, 756A Dover place, manager of the establishment.

MISSING SISTERS RETURN

Absent From Home in Macon, Ga., Since Aug. 29.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 11.—Close-guarded by newspaper men, Mrs. J. Garnett Starr and her sister, Miss Valerie Lanier, missing from their home in Macon, Ga., since August 29, went to Macon from here last night.

Warren Roberts, their guardian, Sheriff J. R. Hicks of Bibb County and a friend, said to be Robert Hodges of Macon, accompanied them. While none of the party would make a direct statement, it was indicated that the young women had been found in St. Augustine, Savannah formerly was the home of J. Garnett Starr.

Among the many callers yesterday was Rick Riddle, a Senate page, who had known the President as a Senator and whose father died some time ago. The boy took his father's most highly prized gift—a framed copy of the Ninety-first Psalm—and left it at the White House door with the wish that it be given to the President, believing that the words would strengthen him.

As the boy turned away an old negro, hobbling on a crutch, passed in to an attendant a single flower, carefully wrapped in paper. He asked that it be given to the President's wife.

RIO JANEIRO, Sept. 11.—Charles E. Hughes, the American Secretary of State, and other members of the American delegation that is attending Brazil's centennial, have been greatly grieved over the illness of Mrs. Harding, wife of President Harding. Hughes last night received an official dispatch from Washington, conveying news of the condition of Mrs. Harding, and immediately sent a cablegram to the President expressing his regret and hope for the recovery of the patient.

Don't Spoil Your Child's Hair By Washing It

When you wash your child's hair be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulifed coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely free of alkali. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulifed in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water, and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. You can get Mulifed at any drug store, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulifed.

6 MEN, 3 WOMEN HURT IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

One Suffers Injuries to His Back When Auto Runs Off Road and Turns Over.

Six men and three women were injured in automobile and motor cycle accidents yesterday.

Fred Schultz, 39 years old, of 3221 Liberty street, was taken to Alexian Brothers Hospital with injuries to his back and lacerations on the right side and left leg. He told police he was riding with Henry L. Cordes of 4109 Michigan avenue about five miles from the city limits, on the Gravois road, when the automobile ran off the road and turned over. He was brought in by a passing automobile and said he did not know what had happened to Cordes.

An automobile driven by Peter Schuster, 21, of 1805 S. Ninth street, turned over at 3:30 a. m. after running into a telephone pole in front of 4517 Shaw avenue. Eugene Wagemann, 19, of 1839 South Seventh street, riding with Schuster, suffered numerous body lacerations.

Motor Cycle Hits Curbing.
Julius Grunder, 19, of 3304 Wisconsin avenue, suffered a fractured right collar bone at 10 a. m. when the motor cycle he was driving fell when it struck a curbing on Eastern avenue at Stewart place after he had swerved to avoid striking an automobile.

George H. Goellner, 55, of 4731 Newberry terrace, a mechanic, suffered lacerations and possible internal injuries at 10 a. m. in an accident in which three automobiles figured in front of 4624 Delmar boulevard. A machine driven by Charles Ellis, negro chauffeur, of 4459 West Belle place, collided with a car driven by Fred Williamson, of 3543 Caroline street, forcing the latter's machine to collide with one standing at the curbing on which Goellner was repairing a battery.

Woman Injured.
Another accident in which were three automobiles, at 5 p. m. in front of 4312 Page avenue, caused scalp wounds and lacerations to Mrs. Leah Hoffman, of 2714 Dickson street. A machine driven by Harry Goldstein, of 4319 Page avenue, starting from the curbing, was struck by an automobile driven by Samuel Davis, of 3114 School street. The Davis car then struck a machine driven by Herman Hoffman, of 2708 Dayton street, in which Max Hoffman, of 2714 Dickson street, and Mrs. Hoffman were riding.

Four occupants of a rented automobile driven by Edward Krewing, 2701 South Jefferson avenue, suffered cuts and bruises when the machine ran into a ditch and turned over at 11 p. m. on the Telegraph road, just south of the city limits. With Krewing were Robert Palma, 2245 Jules street; Beatrice Graef, of 731 Wilmington street, and Florence King, of 6014 Minnesota avenue.

SLATE ROCK DRILLED IN EFFORT TO REACH ENTOMBED MINERS

47 Men Entrapped in Burning Argonaut Shaft Have Been There Almost Two Weeks.

JACKSON, Cal., Sept. 11.—Drills were whirling in the slate rock of the 1800-foot level of the Kennedy mine last night as rescue workers were trying to break through to the 4600-foot level of the burning Argonaut mine where 47 miners have been entombed nearly two weeks. Layer drills, capable of 1100 revolutions a minute, were being used to drill through this last barrier. Only 142 feet of rock now separates the Kennedy and Argonaut shafts at this point.

On the 3600-foot level of the Kennedy, 140 feet more of progress were needed at 4 o'clock yesterday to reach the 75 feet of hard rock separating the rescue crews there from the 4500-foot level of the Argonaut. Fred L. Lowell, safety engineer of the California Industrial Accident Commission, announced that a clear space had been reached, and the rescue workers could see ahead for 25 feet. This fortunate circumstance will pull down the handicap of the Argonaut miners who are working on the 3600-foot level in the race against the Kennedy crew on the 3900-foot level to release their entombed comrades and incidentally win the $5000 bonus offered to the first crew breaking through into the Argonaut mine.

PAULINE FREDERICK RECEIVES NOTHING BY HER FATHER'S WILL

Claude Declares Disinheriting of Actress Is "Intentional and Not Made by Mistake."

NORWICH, Conn., Sept. 11.—The will of Richard O. Libbey, admitted to probate here Saturday, disinherits his daughter, Pauline Beatrice Rutherford, in disposing of an estate valued at about $1,000,000. His daughter is Pauline Frederick, the thrice-married star of dramatic and motion-picture productions. The motive for Libbey's action is not known here. The particular clause reads: "I give and bequeath to my daughter, Pauline Beatrice Rutherford, nothing, and I mention this omission to show that the same is intentional and not made by mistake."

Mrs. Frederick is the wife of Dr. Charles A. Rutherford of Seattle. Considerable publicity was given her recent marriage, since it was the outcome of a childhood romance of school days in Boston. Rutherford, then a student of medicine at Harvard, followed the fortunes of the young girl who came to New York 18 years ago to try for a stage career. After she had gained honors on the stage here, she was married to Frank Andrews, architect of the Hotel McAlpin. She divorced him in 1913, later marrying Willard Mack, the playwright. She then divorced Mack, who married a fourth Rutherford.

IRONIZED YEAST BRINGS MARVELOUS BEAUTY TO SKIN

Science Now Proves How Complexion Is Quickly Beautified Through the Blood

There is nothing in the world today which is producing such a sensation as this simple discovery! Pick out anyone who has healthy, rosy cheeks and a ravishingly beautiful complexion, and you have picked out an individual whose blood is rich with vitamins and iron. This recipe of Nature, "Ironized Yeast" is now being used by thousands of men and women with startling, yet perfectly natural, results. It gives you yeast-vitamins-ironized, containing iron in the form in which it exists in the human body. It is not a mere mixture of yeast and iron, but is yeast ironized, which is a substance all by itself. Modestness, that great beauty robber, gives way to a lily-purity which nothing else on earth can produce. Pimples, blackheads, spots, eruptions! They become practically invisible! Rosy cheeks, firmer and younger-looking skin, rose-petal purity, velvety softness—all natural! Imagine such a skin further beautified by your favorite cream and powder. To think of it is lovely. To have it, a modern miracle! Begin taking Ironized Yeast today. There is only one Ironized Yeast in the world, sold by all druggists at $1.00 a package. Each package contains 40 tablets, each tablet is sealed. They never lose their power. Buy only Ironized Yeast Co., Atlanta, Ga. Get ready to be supremely happy.

"Ironized Yeast Has Cleared My Skin Quickly and Gloriously"

MUSIC AND PICTURES DIVIDE MOVIE HONORS

Joseph Sheehan and His Singers and One of Paul Whiteman's Orchestras Are Featured.

When Joseph Sheehan has sung his simple and heartfelt "Then You'll Remember Me," the Delmonte Theater-goer this week feels that he has got his 50 cents' worth. No doubt there are those who get half a dollar's satisfaction by way of thrills, out of the picture show. It is called "The Crossroads of New York" and is a Mack Sennett production.

This Gotham thriller is Sennett only in spots, but those spots are large and impressive. It is, of course, a true relief not to have the bathing girls introduced, and to the credit of the piece it must be said that this is something new. To the further credit of the piece, as a Sennett matter, it should be said that there are plausible places in the action. It is not altogether impossible, though most of it is highly improbable.

"The Crossroads of New York" is put on the screen without any announcement of author or actors. This, perhaps, is just as well, particularly as to the scenario department. There is not an original idea in the story. Strange to say, use is made of that ancient device of the villain's automobile tumbling over a precipice. Another old timer one meets in the fellow who edges "perilously" along the roof to get into the upper window and save the girl.

There are some quite valuable pictures of New York in the piece. One gets a fine glimpse of the familiar skyline, lower Broadway, some Central Park scenes, and the like. The story is that of the green country boy who goes to the city to seek fame and fortune. His rich uncle gets him a job as a street sweeper. Then the uncle runs off to escape a breach of promise suit and the adventurous actress who is about to bring it. The uncle is reported killed by a fall down a mountain. Nephew falls heir to his millions, and likewise to the crafty attentions of the adventuress, but the uncle returns and foils her.

There are several lovey-dovey affairs, centered around the new-rich youth. A Steck Exchange thriller is put on, and at the last moment, which of course is 3 p. m., the girl's father is released from the clutches of the villain and gets there just in time to save his millions and his friends, and "justice triumphs, as it always should," the screen tells us. It must have cost a deal of cash to put that super-melodrama on the films. It is not too long to cause the Joseph Sheehan Opera Company numbers to be curtailed. Mr. Sheehan seems to sing as happily as ever, and in his group of nearly a dozen underlings he has three or four who also sing. They give selections from "Martha," "The Bohemian Girl," "Tales of Hoffman," "Faust," "Pagliacci," "Il Trovatore" and "Naughty Marietta."

Orchestra Grand Central Feature. Pictorial entertainment is subordinated to music at the New Grand Central Theater this week, the leading attraction being the City's Royal Orchestra, one of several organizations of its kind organized by Paul Whiteman, conductor of the famous Ambassador Hotel Orchestra of New York. The orchestra now has made many popular phonograph records and it boasts the presence of Clyde Doerr, one of the best saxophone players in the jazz field. The performance is a treat for those who like synopsized music played without excessive distortion of the original theme. The playing of "The Sneak," "Georgette" and "Who'll Take My Place" are big features in this special program.

The featured picture is "The Song of Life," a John M. Stahl production which reeks of old-time melodrama, the very antithesis of modern care-free jazz. A discontented young mother deserts her husband and baby. After the manner of runaway wives, she seeks happiness in frivolity and dissipation, but finds it not. She is about to kill herself when she is restrained by a young man who turns out to be her son. Then the picture drifts into the moral lesson stage. The mother finds that the son's wife is discontented, just as she was in her youth. The young wife is planning to leave her husband, but the mother, drawing upon her own bitter experience for arguments, prevents this domestic tragedy. The picture is not a masterpiece, but it has a strong emotional appeal.

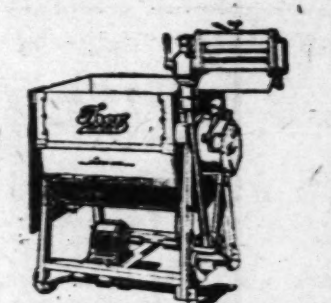

Two of the world's greatest screen comedians, Charlie Ray and Charlie Chaplin, are this week's drawing cards at West End Lyric and Capitol Theaters. Ray's offering is "Alias Julius Caesar," a light but entertaining and sometimes screamingly funny farce. Ray has the part of a villainous boss who is planning to take his girl to a dance. He falls into the hands of practical jokers at the country club. The lock him in the showers and hide his clothing. Draped only with a piece of canvas, Charlie escapes, but the club watchman intercepts him and asks him who he is. "I am Julius Caesar," he replies. The watchman thinks he is crazy and calls the police. Charlie is put in jail with a "society crook." There are some thrilling episodes later when both prisoners are released and Charlie traps the crook and has him put back in jail.

hall, though she has a gambler husband who never had even a correspondence-school course in ethics. In accord with the usual specifications of this sort of drama there is a new-comer, impersonated in this instance by David Powell, who arrives just in time to defend the dance-hall heroine from a host of perils. Not the least of these is the villain, Mitchell Lewis has the bad-man role and he plots against the hero and heroine with fiendish persistence. Here again we meet our old melodramatic friends, the wounded lover on a raft, the girl in the canoe, the waterfall over which both are swept and the bad husband tracked to his doom by wolves. And for a climax the orchestra fiddles while the dance hall burns.

There are added musical features, one of which is "the phantom orchestra." The house musicians literally play "out of sight" while Leader Cohen wields the baton on a seemingly empty stage.

if all the women knew

If all the women in this city, who have no washing machine, would each talk to any one of the 750,000 Thor owners—and learn in this way what Thor means, in time, labor and money saved, to the home it serves—we could never supply the number of machines the women would demand. Especially now that Thor is priced at $125—complete with swinging wringer.

It's natural for users to praise Thor. They will tell you that Thor washes clothes clean—and under your own sanitary home conditions; saves the costly wear and tear of the rubbing board; that Thor saves two-thirds of the time and all the hard work of washday.

You'll never know just what Thor would mean to you unless you see Thor at work. See it at the Thor dealer's shop nearest your home—or telephone for the names of your neighbors served by Thor.

They'll Have to Work the Squeeze Play at Sportsman's Park, If the Browns Win the Flag

Home Stay Gives Fohlmen Advantage Over Yanks in Pennant Drive, Cobb Says

Detroit Leader Thinks Browns Face Hard Fight, but Believes New York's Hard Western Trip and "Breaks" Will Give St. Louis Pennant—Browns May Face Ehmk Today.

By Joseph F. Holland.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the keenest, clearest strategist in baseball, sat in a hotel lobby throughout the rainy afternoon yesterday and reviewed the American League pennant race as the New York Yankees smothered the Athletics twice and increased their lead over the Browns to one and one-half games. The steady downpour forced the postponement of yesterday's game between the Tigers and the Browns, but the teams will play their final games of the year, together today and tomorrow if old Dr. Pius permits.

Ty Cobb has definite ideas about this pennant race. Ideas which will serve to bolster fearful followers of the Browns who believe that yesterday's double victory for the Yankees was really a death knell to the Browns' pennant hopes.

The Glad News.

Let it be said here that Cobb is not given to oratory. Ty does not say things to be pleasant. That is not his nature. He tells you something because he believes it to be a fact, and Ty Cobb believes that the Browns will win the pennant. Why? Well, Cobb is fortified with many reasons. He always fortifies his position with definite, decisive arguments. Follow him through his discourse and see if your opinion coincides with that of one of the greatest figures baseball will ever know.

"The Browns have their backs to the wall today in one of the greatest pennant fights I have ever seen," Cobb said. "They must overcome a lead of one and one-half games, and to do it they must fight step by step with the New York batting power and the New York pitching staff, one of the greatest ever assembled. They cannot afford to slip and if they keep their heads up, fighting and hustling as they have done all year, I believe they will overcome that present lead."

"The Yanks play in Philadelphia today and then start West; start West on one of the hardest trips a pennant contender ever faced. They will face pitching in many instances the equal of their own staff and they are going to lose at least four and possibly six of their 12 games with Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland and Detroit." They will not encounter the ordinary opposition furnished by a team. They will encounter four good ball clubs who fight the Yankees with the last ounce of their reserve; teams which fight the Yankees for the pure pleasure of beating them because they are the New York Yanks.

Got Your Seats?

"Incidentally, the pennant will be decided right here in St. Louis in the series Sept. 16-17-18. The Browns must win that series to win the pennant. And watch them play. I figure the teams in this way: "New York has superb hitting. It has wonderful hitting strength; hitters who swing from their heels. That concludes my estimate of the Yanks. Great natural ability, but when you have said that, you have summed them up. They are a great team, powerful and with the experience of previous pennant grinds. But if they win, it will be because the Browns help them by beating themselves."

"Let me explain this last statement. By beating themselves I mean that the Browns due to the new strain of a pennant fight, may miss an important play at a vital stage. They may make errors when they cost ball games. Errors cannot be helped, but they always hurt. That is what I mean when I say that the Browns may beat themselves in some games, just as Detroit has beaten itself many times through inexperience or one slight misstep."

Fohl Has 2 Exceptional Hurlers And Plays Smarter Game Than N. Y.

"I see the Browns with these assets:

"They are playing their last games before loyal home crowds. That is a tremendous help to a team which is going through its first pennant fight."

"They have tremendous hitting power. They have two great pitchers in Shocker and Fohl. They have a pitcher with rare natural ability in "Dixie" Davis. Vangilder, at his best, is a great pitcher. But when analyzing their staff, I must say that I consider Shocker and Pruett their ace and these two men are really effective. They can take care of New York."

"The Browns play smart baseball. They mix their plays and keep you guessing, while the Yanks do not. They are fast, clever and have the power. They must hold their steady nerves and they cannot afford to falter."

"We Crave Details. Cobb was asked to definitely outline his idea of how the Yanks were certain to lose four games and probably six on the coming road trip."

"They open at Chicago," he said. "In three games they face Babe Ruth, Robert and the Yankees' best pitchers. They should lose one there at least. They come to St. Louis. They face Shocker, Fohl and Davis. They should lose one and possibly more here."

"Then they come to Detroit for three games. They face the Tigers' best pitchers. They should lose one there at least. They come to Cleveland for their final stop. They will probably face Coughlin, Morgan and Uble. They should have their troubles there."

Browns' Office Force Handling First Flood of World's Series Mail

Yesterday, rain notwithstanding, was the first day that world's series reservations were recognized at Sportsman's Park and Business Manager Bob Quinn had a plentiful supply of special delivery letters on file. Today there is a veritable tide of correspondence from persons who hope that Ty Cobb's analysis of the pennant fight is correct, inundated the office.

Because of the fact that only special delivery mail was delivered yesterday, the offices of the club were able to handle the matter easily.

Owner Phil Ball, Bob Quinn and Lee Fohl were in the office during the morning and had a long conference. Quinn said there was nothing of a news nature discussed.

The question of adding to the seating capacity of the park will come up for consideration the early part of this week. Plans have been under consideration for some time and an announcement will be forthcoming at an early date.

Slater News Record. George Slater, who has hit safely in 32 consecutive games must hit in the two contests with Detroit, today and tomorrow, to tie the league record of 40 consecutive games which Ty Cobb made back in 1911. While Slater held on for 44 consecutive games in 1917.

Kenneth Williams has made a home run every day since the Browns returned. A homer a day keeps Walker and Hornsby away.

Kenneth now has 37 for the season, which is 13 better than he did last year. Ken must make one or every other game for the Browns 17 remaining games to reach the 45 mark.

If you believe in signs and symbols, Cobb, who takes the fact that the Yanks open their Western road trip in Chicago on Wednesday, the thirteenth.

1923 MAJOR LEAGUE SEASON TO OPEN LATER

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The start of the 1923 major league baseball season will be moved back a week, from April 19 to April 17, according to a decision revealed today.

The change was regarded as largely in the interest of New York clubs, giving the Yankees additional time to prepare for the opening of their new stadium in Harlem and the Giants a chance to complete reconstruction of a large part of the Polo Grounds.

Anderson Wins From Williams

Australian Defeats College Tennis Champion in National Title Tournery.

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—James O. Anderson of the Australian Davis Cup team defeated Lucien E. Williams of Yale University, intercollegiate champion, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4, in the first match completed today in the third round of the National Lawn Tennis singles championship tournament on the courts of the Germantown Cricket Club.

Gerald L. Patterson of the Australian Davis Cup team defeated W. Ingraham of Providence, joint holder of the National Junior doubles title, 6-3, 6-3, 7-5. Patterson evidenced slight signs of unsteadiness at times, perhaps because he was trying out strokes on his less experienced opponent. He double-faulted four times, but on the other hand he scored as many service aces, when Ingraham forgot himself so far as to volley to this year's Wimbledon winner, as he did several times. Patterson smashed back placement aces.

Pat O'Hara Wood was the third member of the Australian Davis Cup team to win his match today, defeating Willis E. Davis of San Francisco, 6-2, 6-4, 6-1.

The "Breakers" Determined. "He discussed the question with great frankness. He said that he wanted the best team to win. He said bluntly that he was out to win games from both teams, but said he was willing to give his opinion for what it was worth. Which team did he favor? He thought that question but, unfortunately, he would say he was for the best team."

The Yanks' hard road trip, the Browns' home stay and the breaks will be determining factors. Cobb calculation brings him to his conclusion and he is willing to let it go at that.

Today Ty will be out there to make Detroit's hold on third place more secure. He will probably use Howie and Ehmk, a long standing Brownie and then the Yanks come for that "Little World's Series" of three games.

Boy, bring on the breaks.

Records for the season indicate that if the Browns are fortunate enough to get into the world's series, Urban Shocker, the star spit-baller, will be Lee Fohl's main reliance, just as he has been throughout the campaign. Shocker has been used with success against every team in the league, while several others, notably Davis and Kolp, have specialized in downing certain clubs.

Shocker has proven the "iron man" of the local pitching staff. He has gone the route 27 times, 11 more than Elam Vangilder. He has been second in finishing what he starts. Only nine times has Fohl been forced to send a pitcher to Shocker's rescue. That's real flinging in these days of the lively ball, but the spitballer's record shows just what a real hurler is able to do.

The seven pitchers with the Browns at the present time have a combined record of 76 victories against 53 defeats, while they have permitted an average of 4.23 runs a game. This is a pretty good mark for a season, which has been featured by few shutouts and a great number of top-heavy scores in 1125 innings, the hurlers have permitted 527 runs and 1143 hits. They have fanned 279 batters and walked 336.

Statistics show that in 58 of the games played by the Browns to date, including last Wednesday's contest, which resulted in a victory over Cleveland, the pitcher who started won the route. That shows that in 57, or one-half of the team's battles, Fohl was forced to call in a relief man.

Here is how the respective Browns pitchers have fared against the various teams in the San Johnson circuit this year:

Urban Shocker.

The real ace of the Brownie pitching staff. He plays no favorites, although his record shows that he has stopped the Red Sox in five successive contests. But in gaining 24 victories, the spit ball expert has beaten them all. He is up on every club in the league with the exception of the Yankees. New York, always an easy mark for Shocker, has turned around and downed him six times this year. He has trimmed them on four occasions. While Shocker has won 24 games he has lost only 13, which gives him a winning percentage of .449. He has won nine of his last 10 battles.

As well as owning the greatest number of victories of any pitcher for the Fohl clan, Shocker leads in efficiency. In 307 2-3 innings, the opposition has been able to score only 117 runs, an average of 3.45 per inning. This includes the unearned as well as earned markers. The right-hander has been able to finish what he started as is shown by a record of 27 complete battles. He has been taken out on only nine occasions.

Unless something unforeseen happens, Shocker should tie or better his record of 27 victories established last year. His record against the different teams in Johnson's league:

of the Fox Club, and his efficiency. In his 11-3 inning, the opposition has been able to score only 117 runs, an average of 3.42 runs per inning. This includes the unearned as well as earned markers. The right-hander has been able to finish what he started as is shown by a record of 27 complete battles. He has been against Washington. He has against Cleveland only two and in 61-2 innings, the Nationals have been able to count only 12 runs. On the other hand, the Athletics have scored 17 times in 18-3 innings. The left-hander has not hurried emotionally against them, the White Sox. Indians and Tigers have been unable

PART TWO.

INDICATIONS THAT REED WILL CONTROL STATE CONVENTION

Not a Voice Expected to Be Raised in Opposition to Senator at Excelsior Springs Tomorrow.

DELEGATES GATHERING IN KANSAS CITY TODAY

Senator, However, in Conciliatory Frame of Mind, Greets Friends and Former Foes With Equal Fervor.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 11.—Conference of United States Senator Reed, candidates for Congress and State Democratic leaders last night and today have made it virtually certain that Reed will be in complete control of the party's platform convention in Excelsior Springs tomorrow. It is probable that not a voice will be raised in opposition to the Senator.

This means that the State platform in all probability will completely ignore the League of Nations and that Reed will go out in his campaign for re-election in a position to say that, in Missouri at least, the league is a dead issue because the party in the first convention since President Wilson went out of office has refused to approve it.

None inclined to Cross Reed. It is a Democrat of consequence who is disposed to demand an endorsement of the league, or even to stir the slightest movement to cross Reed in the convention, he has not made his appearance here, where most of those who will be members of the convention are gathering for the first time in preliminary conferences, and nearly all the candidates for Congress and many of those for the State Senate have arrived.

It is not to be assumed from the result of the conferences that Reed has not made concessions from his early stand or that Reed has assumed a dictatorial attitude. In fact, he is outwardly in the most conciliatory frame of mind and is meeting friends and former foes with equal degree of friendliness. Reed, like nearly all the others who will be in the convention, is a candidate for office and is perfectly willing to forego his scores in hopes of avoiding friction during the campaign.

Reed has had several conferences with Justice W. W. Graves of the Missouri Supreme Court, who, although not a member of the convention, retains his position as the chief adviser in Democratic circles in the state, and whose political manipulations have had a big part in the affairs of the last two Democratic administrations in the State.

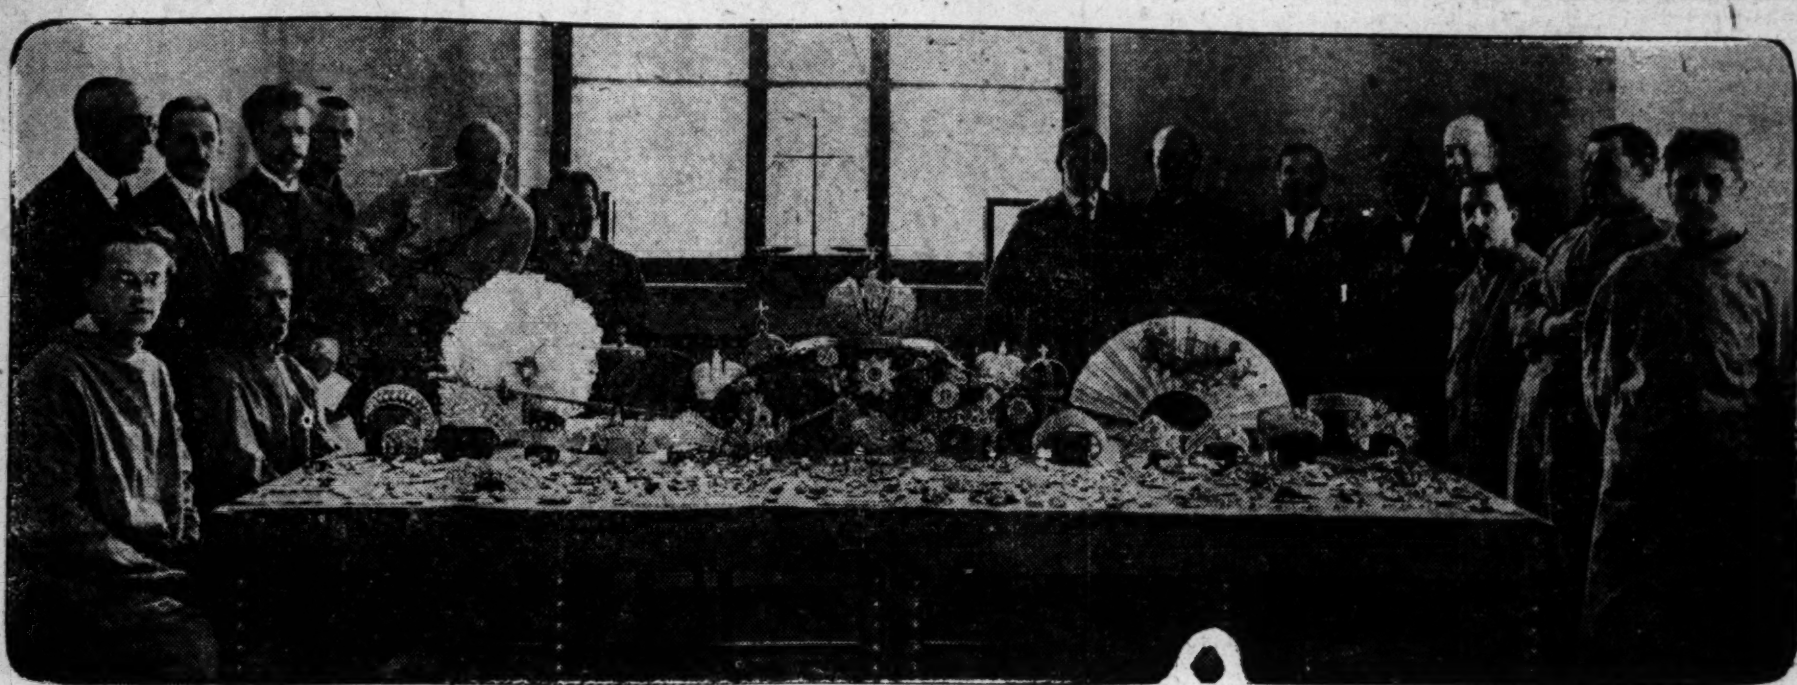

Graves came to Kansas City last week and conferred with many of the Reed followers. Soon after Reed arrived Thursday Judge Graves began conferences with Reed, the conference dealing with the platform declarations regarding the endorsement of the Wilson administration and of the League of Nations. As the candidates for Congress arrived they were taken into some of the conferences.

Reed is reported to have taken the position at the beginning that he would not object to an indirect endorsement of the Wilson administration, but he did not consider it advisable to mention Wilson by name. A plank to the effect that "all Democratic administrations from that of Thomas Jefferson to the present time are endorsed" was said to have been about what Reed wanted. However, Graves is said to have brought him to consent to mention Wilson by name and to approve the two Wilson administrations. But Reed is said to have stood grimly opposed to any mention of the league. According to those who have been in one or two of the conferences, Reed did not want anything in the platform criticizing the league. He only wanted it removed, and nobody stood out to remove it. Consequently it may be assumed that the league will be ignored.

May Ignore Last Platforms. There is some disposition upon the part of a few members of the State committee to demand that the platform be amended to read "We endorse the Democratic platform of 1932." This is agreeable to Reed, it is said, because both of those platforms endorsed the League of Nations and the League of Nations and the party to continue the league in its ultimate adoption. It is probable this year's platform will mention of previous platforms.

The exact language to be used probably will be decided at a time when Reed has called for a meeting at the Muehlebach Hotel. It is that all the candidates for Congress and several of the candidates for the State Senate will be there.

Collection of Russian Crown Jewels Which Are Offered for Sale

THE first photograph ever taken of the entire collection of jewels of the former rulers, together with their inheritance from Catherine II and Paul I, the glittering array including the czar's crown, shown on the dais, made for Catherine II, containing the great uncut Balai ruby, brought from Peking in the seventeenth century; the huge diamond, probably the Grand Mogul, presented to Catherine II by Orloff as a conciliatory gift, mounted in the sceptre shown in the diagonal position directly beneath the czar's crown; the jeweled fan showing the only extant picture of the palace of Alexander I, later destroyed by Paul I; the coat pocket made for Paul I, when he was 12 years old, containing 13,000 stones weighing 3000 carats and valued at $45,000,000, which was later made into a coat valued at $100,000,000; four crowns, including the wedding crown, shown to the left of the czar's crown, which contains one diamond weighing 104 1/2 carats; the Shah diamond, as large as a man's fist and almost uncut, with a cord about it so that the czar might hang it from his crown when he wished, and countless other gems of historic and uncalculable value. The men in

MAINE IS VOTING TODAY ON NATIONAL AND STATE TICKETS; MANY WOMEN SEEK OFFICE

Nation-Wide Interest in Result Owing to the Political Adage, "As Maine Goes, So Goes the Country."

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 11.—The first State election of 1932 is under way in Maine today with a United States Senator, four Representatives to Congress, and a Governor heading the officials to be chosen.

The adage, "As Maine goes so goes the country," attracted nation-wide interest in the result, although only a tremendous turnover would change the present Republican control.

Democratic leaders here maintained that in the women's vote lies a potential surprise for Republican organization heads, who predict a plurality of 40,000.

Senator Frederick Hale, Republican, is opposed by former Gov. Oakes, C. Curtis, Democrat.

Gov. Percival P. Baxter, Republican, has W. R. Patterson, Democrat, a former Attorney-General of the State, an opponent. The four present Republican Congressmen are up for re-election.

MASSACHUSETTS CAMPAIGN ENDS

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—A campaign that has shaken both parties and confused the voters will be brought to an end today and tomorrow the Republicans will go to the polls to decide whether Senator Lodge and Gov. Cox shall be renominated and the Democrats will select their opponents to the Republican nominees.

Sherman L. Whipple, noted lawyer, is among the Democratic candidates for the Senate.

Joseph Walker, former Progressive and one-time Speaker of the House, opposes Senator Lodge. He has charged the Senator with being reactionary and with having failed to make plain his position on the prohibition amendment, which Walker favors.

Senator Lodge has defended his course in the Senate and has pointed out that, although he opposed the prohibition amendment, he voted for the Volstead enforcement act.

Prohibition also crops up in the Republican contest for nomination for the attorney-generalship. One candidate is Harold D. Wilson, former State Enforcement agent, who raided a room on an upper floor in the Quincy House in Boston, while Gov. Cox was attending a banquet downstairs. Wilson charged his opponent later was due to this raid.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE MARNE OBSERVED IN DRIVING RAIN

Thousands of Mourning Relatives Visit Battlefield; Poincare Vows to Have Justice Done.

By the Associated Press.

MEUX, France, Sept. 11.—The anniversary of the first battle of the Marne was observed yesterday by thousands of mourning relatives who came through a driving rain and a bitter wind to the spot where members of the families fell in battle, and also a public ceremony that afforded Premier Poincare an opportunity again to emphasize France's determination to obtain her due from Germany.

"On the battlefields of the Marne," said M. Poincare in conclusion of his address, "let us swear to have justice."

The Premier reminded his auditors that the question of reparations remained unsettled. "Let us at least approach the problem in its entirety and include in the settlement those interrelated debts that have been prematurely presented to us," he said.

M. Poincare served notice on his hearers that France intended to be paid. He answered criticisms that France was pressing Germany too hard by saying:

"We cannot abandon our claim without ruining France, and the ruin of France would be for all Europe the most terrible of catastrophes. Therefore, we must stop temporizing. Germany must, willingly or unwillingly, fulfill her pledges."

"If no one helps us to re-establish ourselves, then we will help ourselves."

Field Marshal Viscount French of Ypres, who commanded the British forces at the battle of the Marne, spoke for Great Britain. All the allied and associated Powers, including the United States, were represented by military attaches.

BRITISH FIRM LEASES VAST RUSSIAN MINES

Russo-Asiatic Corporation Obtaining 99-Year Contract Affecting 2,500,000 Acres of Land.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—An agreement by which the Russo-Asiatic Corporation obtains a 99-year lease on vast mining properties in Russia and Siberia was signed here Saturday night by Leslie Urquhart, head of the corporation, and Leonid Krassin, soviet Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Urquhart also said the contract provides that the corporation's title to the property becomes absolute if in the future the Russian Government decides to recognize private property rights.

This is the first separate agreement of a British firm with Moscow following failure of the Genoa and The Hague conferences. It is expected more will follow, but it is significant that Urquhart is associated with the German Krupp in the deal.

Dr. Mundt, who only recently came to St. Louis, virtually made his first public appearance in the address yesterday. He spoke in German.

Purposes of German House. One of the results of the proposed German House, he said, would be to keep alive the memories of Germany. All those holding to the ideals of their old country were urged to support the society. A strong German sentiment would be brought to the United States. Dr. Mundt declared, as Germans always had been a desirable element in this country.

The speaker said he appeared as a representative of the democratic German republic. The central power of the German republic was said to be stronger now than under the imperial Government. He termed it a republic of workers, with a strengthened national conscience.

John Toensfeldt, president of the society, said the aim was to bring together German people and ideals and keep them together, working peacefully, but in determined fashion.

Speaker Attacks Wilson. E. V. P. Schneiderhahn, who spoke in English, presented his views on causes of the recent war, attributing responsibility to others than the German Emperor. He attacked former President Wilson, and stated "out of this terrible misery of the German people, practically reduced to slavery with the collapse of Woodrow Wilson, the time will come when German people all over the world will hold a common bond of sympathy." Declaration of the United States' entry into the war was termed a "hypocritical" action on the part of Wilson.

Other denunciations included the press, which Schneiderhahn said had received instructions from Washington in 1917 to prepare the country for war. He named and commended a group of Senators, who, during deliberations on entry into the war, gained the designation of the "Wilful 13."

One declaration, "the country was swindled into prohibition," brought strong applause.

Parade of Children. A parade of children carrying banners explaining the aims of the society, urging help for the German republic and closer union between it and the United States, was held during the afternoon. Gifts were distributed to the children. The picnic continued with dancing and other entertainment features until midnight.

LENINE PREPARING A NEW ECONOMIC POLICY

Premier, Fully Recovered, Working on Plan for Building Up of Russia From Within.

By SAMUEL SPEWACK.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

MOSCOW, Sept. 11.—Premier Lenine, fully recovered, is writing a speech to be delivered at the meeting of the Communist International on Nov. 7, when he will outline his "new economic policy," the building up of Russia from within.

While the Premier is in seclusion at his country home just outside of Moscow, seeing only his most intimate associates, such as Zinovieff, Rakovsky and Trotsky, the stage is being carefully set for his announcement of the program which he wants all Russia, communist and otherwise, to follow.

It will be his first public appearance since his illness and grandiose demonstrations are planned for the occasion. All over Moscow there will be celebratory crocheting, and delegations from other cities will be here to take part.

Will Urge End of Bickering. The correspondent is informed that Lenine will "continue to urge all communists to cease bickering and make a system." He will devote particular attention to the peasants, who are dissatisfied because they pay high prices for what they buy and get comparatively little for what they sell.

His foreign policy will be one of no compromise. He will try to strengthen Russia internally and permit foreign capital to flow in under such limitations as will prevent it from getting the upper hand.

His idea is that his system will take at least two years to prove itself one way or another. He does not ignore the present evils, speculating petty crookedness, and so on, but he sees these as inevitable accompaniments of his system, to be removed in time. He is convinced, the correspondent is told, that even after a year his plans for rebuilding Russia will show gratifying results.

Eager to Begin His Work. According to the correspondent's information, Lenine is eager to begin his work at once, but his physicians permit him only a few hours a day in which to receive visitors, do his writing and other work. Much of the rest of his time is spent in the garden where, it is said, he gets much enjoyment from the antics of a brood of rabbits.

Those who have seen him recently say Lenine's old vigor and humor have returned and that he is in better shape than he was before his illness.

Pilot Wants to Loosen Them Up for 234-Mile Flight on Way to Brazil.

(Copyright, 1932.)

PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti, Sept. 11.—Installation of the high compression pistons on the two Liberty motors of the BC-2 has been completed. Our scheduled departure from here yesterday was postponed, however, because the motors did not work to the satisfaction of Pilot Hinton.

He intends to make a number of trial flights to loosen them up before attempting the 234-mile leg to Santo Domingo City en route to Brazil.

BRITISH DEBT ACTION NEAR

Delegation Is Expected to Depart for U. S. Shortly.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Times says the British debt funding delegation will depart for the United States shortly. The personnel is still unknown, but it has been suggested Sir Robert S. Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will head the delegation and, adds the Times, no doubt the Government has provided itself with the necessary dollars to pay the first half-year's interest of $25,000,000.

CLEMENCEAU DECLARES HE CANNOT BEAR TO HAVE FRANCE ACCUSED IN U. S.

PARIS, Sept. 11.

GEOORGES CLEMENCEAU, France's war Premier, has addressed the following message to the Associated Press from his home at Jardy, Department of Vendee, his native district, on his contemplated visit to the United States:

"I have no time to make plans. All I can say is that I am ready to leave for America during the first week in November, there to remain for a few weeks if the state of my health permits."

"I will arrange the whole matter with my American friends, who already know I can no longer bear the idea of France being accused of imperialism and militarism by the American people. Naturally, I will speak of the League of Nations, but I pursue no other designs than to say what I feel and then return home."

CLEMENCEAU SAID TO SEEK INCLUSION OF U. S. IN ENTENTE

"Tiger's" Proposed Visit to America Bids Fair to Stir Up Political Tempest in France.

ENEMIES ALREADY SHARPENING SWORDS

Should Former Premier Attain Object, He Would Be in Position of Great Power in Country.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Premier Clemenceau's proposed trip to the United States bids fair to stir up a political tempest of the most violent kind in France.

He says he goes to formulate his views on "the rights and duties of each people in the tremendous world crisis created by the war." But in the press and among well-informed politicians the idea of the present trip is being viewed with a great deal of skepticism. Clemenceau is animated by motives far greater than a mere desire to reply to the anti-American utterances of Rudyard Kipling.

His aim, it is thought, is the restoration of the entente cordiale with the United States, Great Britain and France which he framed in 1919, which the American Senate destroyed, and without which, to his mind, restoration of peace and economic tranquility in Europe cannot be achieved.

Enemies Sharpen Swords. Should the Tiger attain his object, he would return to France with greater potential prestige politically than Napoleon possessed on his return from Elba. It is believed.

Consequently his enemies already are sharpening their swords for a violent assault upon his project, while his partisans are rallying to his defense of their old leader's "come-back."

At St. Vincent-sur-Jard, where the former Premier is living a hermit-like life in a diminutive cottage by the sea, an eager cohort of French and American newspaper men rushed thither from Paris, are eagerly seeking further details. At Vittel, where he has been taking the cure, Andre Tardieu, the Tiger's principal parliamentary spokesman, is preparing to return to Paris.

Mission Praised. In Paris, the Petit Parisien, foremost of the French independent papers, declared that the Tiger's editorial entitled "A Fine Mission" was "France already owes much to Clemenceau. But if he understands how to touch the heart of that great idealist people which is the American people, it will be all of Europe which will owe him a statue."

The attitude of the French Government toward M. Clemenceau's enterprise is difficult to ascertain. At the Foreign Office, the Tiger's principal official representative, his mission to go to America "on his own account and without holding any mission." In consequence of his making the journey as an official representative of the Government.

On the other hand, it is admitted there is likely to be considerable discussion of the trip when Parliament reassembles next month. Pressure may then be brought to bear on Premier Poincare to name the Tiger his official envoy.

Organs of the Radical and Socialist parties are already voicing their vehement opposition to the Clemenceau scheme.

Petit Parisien's Editorial. The Petit Parisien's editorial says: "Clemenceau appeals to American solidarity not only on behalf of France but also on behalf of Europe, even of the highest interests of the human race."

"By entering the conflict with all its forces in the middle of the third year of the war alongside of those defending right and liberty, the American people shortened the frightful conflict, making victory lean definitely toward the allies. For this we are all deeply grateful."

"But the United States task itself yet ended. After four years of effort it is plain to everybody that Europe will need indefinite time to revive unless the same idealistic outburst which brought the American people, in the spring of 1917, to the battlefield, brings it back to Europe to help Europeans repair their ruins and reorganize their finances and damaged currencies."

Klan Candidate for Governor. By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 11.—Charles Hall, State Senator of Marshfield, Ore., was nominated as an independent candidate for the governorship at a mass meeting last night. Hall was a candidate in the May primaries for the Republican nomination, but was defeated by Gov. Ben W. Olsen. Hall was backed in the primary campaign by the Federated Patriotic Societies and the Ku Klux Klan.

There is only one word to characterize the economics of Gooding and Stanfield—imbecility. It is a shock to the theory of popular government that men of such crass incompetence should participate in the vital work of framing legislation that affects the pocketbook of every citizen. Especial commiseration, however, is due to the American farmer, since Gooding and Stanfield, as leaders of the agricultural tariff bloc, are specifically charged with guarding the farmer's interests in this bill.

THE TURK GREET'S THE DAWN

~~MARK 5~~

There would be surprises; some would be of the sort that surprised the people of four years ago, and others, people are still able to see and hear what goes on, and then and to take part in it with undiminished interest. These triumphant old folks deserve and will receive prizes much more than do the young.

DANCE IN MANY FORMS FEATURED AT ORPHEUM

Florence Walton, Bill Robinson and Pony Sextet Show Nimbles.

Dancing of widely varying types has the leading place on the week's bill at the Orpheum Theater. The headliner is Florence Walton, widely advertised as the wearer of sumptuous jewelry adornment and as "America's most popular ballroom dancer." Miss Walton's jewel display, at least at the opening performance, was not so dazzling as some of the stories that had been written about it, but her dancing was up to specifications. The act has a big and colorful setting. Leon Lettrini is Miss Walton's dancing partner and she has the assistance of a pianist and violinist.
Expert footwork of another sort is shown by Bill Robinson, a negro buck and wing dancer of remarkable skill and agility. His enjoyment of his own capering is infectious and his comedy is good.
Anatol Friedland, song writer and an act in which a pony sextet gives further exploitation to the dance.
In this act also there is acceptable
if not exceptional singing of some of the composer's famous songs.
Bobby Folsom and Jack Denny sing and play jazz songs with the backing of their Metropolitan Orchestra. J. Francis Dooley and Corinne Sales return with new variation in their well-known act, "Will You Be My Girl?" The Stanley Brothers are remarkable hand balancers and Jack Hanley shows new comedy juggling stunts.

MISS FRANCES WOODS TO BE MARRIED TONIGHT

Wedding of Miss Grace Peters and A. W. Dehlendorf Took Place Saturday.

An interesting wedding of the week is that of Miss Frances Elizabeth Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David E. Woods of 7089 Kingsbury boulevard, and Thomas Wheeler Galleher of Baltimore, son of the late C. W. Galleher, which will be solemnized at 8:30 o'clock this evening at the home of
Mr. and Mrs. Woods. The Rev. Dr.
McLeod of the Central Presbyterian Church will perform the ceremony,
before an improvised altar of smilax,
pink and white asters and gladioli built in the living room, and the bride will be preceded by her sister, Mrs. Albert Hoppel, as matron of honor, and her younger sister, Miss Delle Woods, as maid of honor. Earl P. Galleher of Baltimore will be his brother's best man and only attendant.

The bride will wear a gown of ivory-tinted velvet elaborately embrodered with pearls and crystals.
The bodice is made long, with a bertha of rose point lace falling from the bateau neck line. The skirt has tight clinging draperies, held at one side with a cluster of orange blossoms. Ivory satin forms the long court train. It is lined with silver cloth and ornamented at the end with orange blossoms.

The tulle veil will be arranged under a coronet of rose point lace, which will follow the hem line of the veil to the floor. Her flowers will be orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Hoppel will wear pink chif-fon, made long waisted and sleeveless. The skirt has tight clinging draperies, with long irregular points at the hem line. Two panels of chif-fon with motifs of silver cloth will fall from the waistline at the back, forming trains, and the girdle will be of silver ribbon, arranged loosely and caught at the hips with vines of French blue and pink roses.

Miss Mary Delle Woods will be similarly gowned in yellow chiffon, made with gold lace and trimmed with French blue and yellow roses.
Mrs. Hoppel will carry Columbia roses and baby's breath, while Miss Woods will carry sunburst roses.

Following the ceremony there will be a reception for 350 guests. The dining room will be decorated in smilax, blue delphinium and baby's breath, and the bride party will receive in the garden under a canopy of smilax, asters and gladioli.
Mr. Galleher and his bride will reside in Baltimore, and will be at home there after Oct. 4, at 2835 North Calvert street. Among the out-of-town guests who will witness the ceremony are: Mrs. Woods' sister, Mrs. Albert P. Galleher of Shreveport, La., and her daughter, Miss Noel Galleher; her brothers, David and James Kevill of Sikeston, Mo.; Maurice and Paul Galleher of Superior, Wis.; Mrs. Albert Kemp of Chicago; Mrs. Charles E. Brown of Canton, O., and Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Galleher of Cincinnati, O.

BEFORE an altar of asters and roses built in the living room of the home of her parents, Miss Frances Elizabeth Woods, 2835
Westminster place, Miss Grace Peters became the bride Saturday at
A. W. Dehlendorf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dehlendorf, 4444 Garfield avenue. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by the Rev. J.
P. Meyer of the Bethel Evangelical Church and was followed by a reception.

The bride was gowned in white cut velvet with trimmings of crystal made quite long and draped. The bodice was cut low and filled in with tulle to a slightly rounded neck line.
There were no sleeves. The drapery of the long skirt was confined with long crystal fringe. A court train of the cut velvet lined with white crepe remained was suspended from the shoulders, over which fell the tulle bridal veil, which was caught to her coiffure with a headress of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Jeanette Granville attended the bride as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Marjorie Haffel, a debutante of the season,
who will become a bride on Oct. 1, and Miss Grace Dehlendorf, sister of the bridegroom. They were gowned alike in crepe romaine, Miss Granville in orchid, Miss Rathel in blue and Miss Dehlendorf in green, made simply on long draped lines, with boat-shaped neck lines and sleeveless.

The skirt draperies were caught to the left side of each gown and the ends fell to the floor, forming trains.
Their flowers were roses and baby breath, tied with long flowing streamers. Elizabeth Peters was her sister's flower girl. She wore a frock of peach colored georgette, veiled with cream colored net, and carried a basket of roses.

Robert Dehlendorf served his brother as best man and the groom-smen were Dr. Arthur C. Brooks, Miss Rathel's fiancé, and Alfred Laes-sig.

Mr. and Mrs. Dehlendorf have returned to Chicago on their honeymoon trip, and upon their return will be at home with Mr. and Mrs.
Peters at 6220 Westminster place.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hessner of Denver and their small daughter,
Harriet, attended the wedding. Mrs.
Hessner is a sister of the bride.

rington of Webster Groves are spending the summer in Wisconsin and Michigan. They were the guests in ST. LOUIS, MONDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 11, 1922.

WHAT DID YOU SEE TODAY?

Volunteer Reporters Tell the Post-Dispatch of the Interesting, Unusual and Often Humorous Incidents They Encounter.

Some actions are not so absurd as they look. The bride who shook a cantaloupe before buying has been pretty well vindicated since a contributor to this department, last week, ridiculed her supposed mistake. And now the young woman who, as told Friday, washed a baby's hair with washblue, has her day in court.

HAIR-GROWING BLUES.

In your column Friday a lady writes to say she saw a young lady wash a baby's hair with wash blue. Whether blond or brunette, wash blue stimulates the growth of the hair, makes it fluffy and cleanses it.

I saw Kenneth Williams accept the fans' applause with a broad smile after he hit his thirty-fourth home run of the season, with three men on the bases. M. HUTMAN, 4493 Washington bl.

AN AID TO VICTORY.

I saw a woman at the Labor day game remove her false teeth in order to yell harder for the Browns. MRS. HETLEY, 3031A N. Sarah st.

HIS SWEETHEART.

Every day as I go to work I see a man about 30 years old, accompanied by his mother, walk to the corner to board the car. While the car waits the man kisses his mother, then boards the car. The mother returns home, unimpaired of the many eyes that watch this daily procedure. PEARL KITZELMAN, 1020 Morrison av.

HUMAN LUGGAGE.

I saw a tourist machine with a luggage carrier on the running board, inside which were two small children, sitting in serene contentment. GRACE STRECKER, 3867 Lafayette av.

A REPERTOIRE.

An elderly woman sat down beside me on the car. She had four books and a newspaper in her arms. She put on some silver-rimmed glasses and read a few pages of "The Sheik." Then she read a few pages from "Talking With the Dead." A few minutes later she closed that book, changed her silver-rimmed glasses for gold-mounted glasses and read from the third book, "The Holy Bible." She changed again in a few moments from gold to silver mounted glasses and read a chapter from "The Bartlett Mystery." When she closed that book she read the newspaper. It was four days old.

I saw two men carrying a storage battery and an electric horn, which they attached to the battery. The result was a siren wail. Johnny Tobin thought so much of the scheme that he tossed them a ball.

A pious view. An old man entered a delicatessen on South Grand boulevard and asked for some sliced ham. While the woman was slicing it, the big knife slipped from her hand and plunged into the floor within an inch of her foot. "See," said the man, "You see, sister, the Lord was taking care

POLLY WILL RETURN.

While on the third floor of an empty house where the paperhangers were at work, I saw a green parrot alight on a lamp post. I thought "now is my time to capture a prize and probably get a small reward for its return to the owner." I carried a six-foot step ladder all the way down stairs and across the street and as I leaned the ladder against the lamp post a man stepped up to me and asked me to please let his bird alone, as he always give his pet its morning exercise.

COMPLEXES WORKING.

I saw a man in a downtown bank start to fill out a withdrawal blank. After writing a few words, he put the pen in his mouth, then threw the pen on the floor. As he stepped back he upset the cuspidor. As he stopped to get the pen he knocked his hat off. He left the bank just in front of me, met a friend, and without a word got into an auto, but got out right away and walked across the street and got in what was evidently his own car and drove away.

A TOUCH OF HOME.

A street worker, on South Broadway, at noon each day selects a large cobbler stone from among those he is working on, places it against the wall of a nearby building, and then waits for his wife and two children. The wife sits on the stone, while the family groups around her on the sidewalk. Then she serves lunch. At 1 o'clock the man goes back to work while his wife cleans up their sidewalk lunch table. Then the children trot out in the street, kiss papa good-by and go home with mother.

ITALIANS BARRED FROM CHURCH

Charges, It Is Said, Will Be Filed Against Memphis Police.

By the Associated Press. MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 11.—Barred from entrance to St. Joseph's Catholic Church by a police guard here yesterday, Italian members of the church knelt in prayer on the steps of the building. It is said charges will be filed against the police.

The action of the police followed the launching of a movement by the Italians to seek the return of Father Martino Furbatto, said to be the only Italian priest here, who was ordered to report in Washington last week. The members of the church, it is said, are in protest against the removal of Father Furbatto, and in the dark as to the reasons therefor. The Italians desire a priest, it is said, who speaks their language, only a few of the young men, however, understand English, it is declared.

3000 AT MAYNARD FUNERAL

Simple Services Conducted From Porch of Home.

By the Associated Press. WILMINGTON, N. C., Sept. 11.—The funeral of Lieut. Belvin W. Maynard, known as "the flying parson," who was killed in an airplane accident at Rutland, Vt., Thursday, was held yesterday afternoon. The old Maynard home is seven miles from the nearest railroad, but more than 3000 persons attended the service.

Two airplanes from Pope field, Camp Briggs, arrived from the north of the Maynard home about 10 minutes before the hour for the funeral, but the pilots were unable to find the home and the throng on account of a dense fog. The service was conducted from the porch of the old-fashioned country home and was very simple.

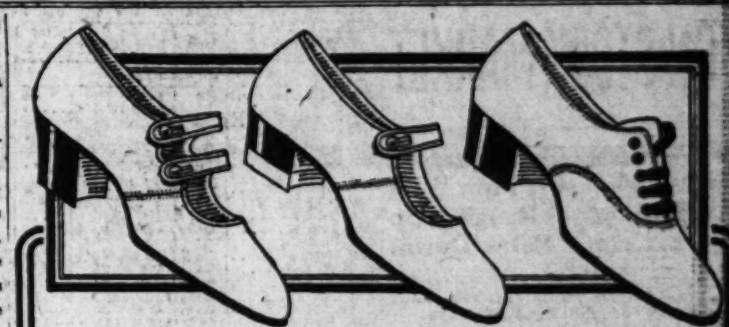

Experienced cooks know that the success of a salad lies in getting the mayonnaise just right. A small quantity of Colman's D.S.F. Mustard adds to mayonnaise that piquancy which tempts you to the last morsel.

Write today to Dept. 89, for our recipe book, free. It gives this and many other interesting uses for mustard.

In Saint Louis at 1004 Olive Street

When a master-pianist plays, the piano is invariably a Steinway.

And there you have the answer to the question, "Which is the greatest piano?"

It is not credible that supreme artists would choose any but a supreme instrument.

Yet the Steinway, the Instrument of the Immortals, is not as high-priced as its supremacy would justify.

You can purchase a Steinway for as little as $875, and on these terms—10% of the purchase price down, two years to pay the balance. Your old piano taken in exchange.

An illustrated booklet, "The Making of a Steinway," of interest to anyone contemplating the purchase of a Piano, will be sent you if you fill in and mail this coupon.

A RECENT report from a large number of Kansas farmers shows that they were able to plow an average of 2 inches deeper with tractors than with horses. Those who kept records claimed that this Keipp last night when he snapped a revolver at the policeman, who had pursued him from in front of 813 Wash street to a point on Eighth street north of Wash street. Keipp was attracted by a fight between Viser and Alonzo Smith, a negro, in front of the Wash street address. Both negroes ran in opposite directions as the policeman approached. Another policeman caught Scott. Keipp pursued Viser and fired several shots in the air before Viser, he reported, stopped and snapped the revolver at him. It failed to discharge and Keipp fired at Viser.

Negro, Stabbed by Another, Dies.
George Moore, 33, of 1217 Blair avenue, a negro, died at the city hospital at 5:30 p. m. yesterday from a stab wound in the left side of the neck, an hour after he had been found lying in an alley in the rear of 1447 Biddle street. Louis Gleese, 47, a negro, admitted the cutting, police reported. He said he and Moore had quarreled and had been separated by a third man. Moore, he said, renewed the quarrel and followed him home, kicking in the door, whereupon he stabbed Moore with a pocketknife.

Rains Injure Texas Cotton.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 11.—The fairly generous rains which fell in Texas Saturday and Sunday were of decided benefit to cattle growers and merchants, but offered a slight setback to the cotton farmers. The latter are handicapped by a shortage in pickers, and by the fact that the long, dry summer has forced the cotton open earlier than usual and all at one time. Continued rain will beat much of the staple off the stalks.

In West Texas, merchants are closing their stores to go into the cotton fields and help the farmers gather their crops before the fall rains set in more heavily. The large corn and feed crops being raised in Kansas, Missouri and other central and northern states is expected to have an advantageous bearing on the cattle industry, as it will enhance the demand for stocker and feeder cattle from these ranges.

Shop Situation Improves.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11.—While the railroads still are short of men in their shops, they are steadily improving their service and the apprehensions of fruit growers as to the marketing of crops has been allayed. Fruit is moving steadily and steps have been taken to increase the number of refrigerator cars in service.

There has been a steady increase in bank clearings and deposits in the last week and a widening activity in building construction, with more work in sight than the available supply of trained artisans can do. Retail trade is improving.

In financial circles, the recent drop in this trade is attributed largely to the psychological influence of the labor disturbances, and it is thought that actual losses have been magnified.

BUILDING LABOR SHORTAGE.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
BOSTON, Sept. 11.—The growing shortage of labor in the building trades has become a noteworthy development of the business situation here in the last week.

It is almost impossible to obtain competent plumbers, and other trained men are scarce. The same condition obtains in the metal trades and manufacturers throughout New England are bidding for labor. Advances in wages are reported from many scattered localities and newspapers are carrying a large volume of help wanted advertising.

The New England railroads now have nearly all the shopmen they normally use, and are weeding out the less efficient and hiring skilled workers as opportunity offers. Coal is still scarce, although bituminous fuel is moving in more rapidly this week.

PACIFIC SHIPPING.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 11.—The extensive campaign by American steamship operators to meet competition at Pacific ports, of foreign-owned passenger lines and freighters in the trans-Pacific trade is at last beginning to show results. These are taking the form of additional orders for goods for export from Seattle and other Puget Sound ports. The largest steamship operating company in this territory now has five passenger and freight steamships and five freighters, allocated by the Shipping Board for this district, in active operation. The cargoes for all are being booked in full.

Look Next Week

See how teeth glisten when the film goes
Note what beauty you have gained

For your sake and your family's sake, start making this test today. Then look next week and see the changes that occur.

Millions of people of fifty nations are now brushing teeth in this new way. Dentists everywhere are urging them to do it. You can see the results wherever you look—in teeth that glisten as they never did before.

Now see them on your own teeth. Go get this free tube at your store.

Film makes teeth dingy

You feel on your teeth a viscous film. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Food stains, etc., cloud that film. Then it forms a thin dingy coat. Film is also the basis of tartar.

The ordinary tooth paste leaves much of that film intact. Thus most people's teeth, until lately, were clouded more or less. Beautiful teeth were less common.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Most tooth troubles are now traced to film. And, despite the tooth brush, they became almost universal.

Now millions combat it

Dental science has, for long, sought ways to fight that film. Two effective methods have been found. Able authorities, by careful tests, proved them beyond question. Now millions of people are using them daily, largely by dental advice.

One method acts to curdle film, the other to remove it. And this is done without the use of any harmful scouring agent.

A new-type tooth paste has been created, based on modern research. It includes some new essentials and avoids some old mistakes. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combatants are embodied in it.

Some Pepsodent effects

Film coats are more readily combated. The teeth become highly polished, so film less easily adheres.

Pepsodent also multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize the acids which cause decay.

Thus Nature's great tooth-protecting agents are given manifold effect, while soap-and-chalk pastes reduce their power.

These results are bringing a new dental era in millions of homes the world over. And these whiter, safer, cleaner teeth mean life-long benefits. When you find them out, you will want your people to enjoy them.

They use it

The dainty people you see, who show white teeth, are probably users of Pepsodent. You see them everywhere. To women it means new beauty, new charm; to men new cleanliness. To children it means new protection against troubles you have had.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

A few days will convince you that this is a method essential to you and yours. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

In the Spotlight of the Setting Sun

WHAT does it show? Here are the hard, cold figures:

One hundred normal men pass the age of 25. At 65, eleven of these men are independent and 53 are dependent. The rest are dead. In other words, about 84 of every hundred men who reach the age of 65 are dependent on others for support.

That is the story the figures tell. But it's the story of a passing generation—a story of people who lived in the day when Thrift was recognized but not advertised. We believe the present generation will better the percentage, and it is our intention to help. One mission of Mercantile advertising is to help you face the spotlight of the setting sun—Independent.

MOTHERS' KIDNAPING THEIR CHILDREN

By Sophie Irene Loeb

A MOTHER spent the night in jail as a result of kidnapping her child from the husband from whom she was separated.

This is one instance of thousands. Every day, somewhere, some mother is trying to get to her child. If there is one law that needs adjusting, it is the one setting forth where the child belongs when the parents separate.

When, oh, when will man understand that he can't settle things by defying the natural laws? The one place for a child is with its mother, unless she is an improper guardian, and that is rare.

When, oh, when will we understand that no matter what the courts decide, the heart of a mother is always aching for the little one she bore, and no amount of money or legal documents will change the feeling of mother love?

She will go through all kinds of hardships and sacrifices in order to get her child, and she will break any laws, so matter how she may agree to them, because it is the mother instinct that is drawing her toward the babe that is a part of her.

Some day man will wake up to this one fundamental principle and will make stringent laws for the protection of mothers and children. The statutes will prescribe that when couples separate or secure a divorce the children shall go to the mother until they are at least fourteen years of age, regardless of what other settlements are made, and that any man who steals a child away from such a mother shall be put behind bars.

Certainly a father has rights. He has the right to see his children. He has the right to have them for a short period, but in the main they belong to the mother and should not be taken away from her.

This thing of leaving them a few months with the mother and a few months with the father is all folly. Children are weaned away from one or the other and strife usually is engendered. They are torn between the two forces.

It is known of one divorced mother who actually gave up her children and has suffered the tortures of Hell, because her husband cut her off with very little and she is unable to give the children the comforts and pleasures that the father gives them when they are with him.

This woman told me: "When the children come home, after being with my former husband, they are miserably spoiled. I can do nothing with them. They don't like my three little rooms, coming away from his spacious home."

"They are good children and they try not to make me feel it, but I can see it clearly. They want this, and the other thing which is their father's. They don't like my three little rooms, coming away from his spacious home."

"I fear that they will learn to dislike me because I can give them so little, and I cannot help seeing their gladness and anticipation to get back to the father. So I am letting them stay with him, subjugating my own rights and my own wishes in the matter in the interest of the children."

"Of course, they should love me and want me no matter how poor I am, but they are only children, and they will not realize my misery until they are much older. In the meantime, I cannot deprive them of all the good things they can get by being with their father. But Heaven only knows what I suffer for the loss of them."

To me this is one of the most cruel cases I know about. I wish this man, who has since married, could be punished to the full. He is absolutely heartless about his former wife, giving her the torture of taking the children away and giving them so much when they are with him as to turn them away from their own mother.

If the law were properly made, this mother would have these children where they belong, with her, and all the comforts, too. The trouble of it all is that people are bitter and parting and revenge is uppermost in their minds—revenge which is but dead sea fruit and only begets misery for those who foster it.

The manly man, however, no matter what his grievance he has against his wife, will realize that the place for his children is with their mother and will not assume his legal rights in order to fulfill the natural law.

BEING LOST

By Winifred Black

THERE they were, right in the middle of the sidewalk—scared little Brother was round-eyed and horrified—how could he help being horrified? Mamma had gone somewhere and not one of the men hurrying past looked the least little bit like Dad. And Big Sister was crying—right out loud, too, and everybody was staring at her and when they were through staring at her they stared at Little Brother. And he hung his head and wished the ground would open and swallow him up.

What a great, big, dreadful world it was, to be sure. And what thousands and millions and trillions of grown-ups there were in it, and not one other little boy that he could see. And when you looked at the grown-ups you could tell that they didn't care a cent about balls or toys or kiddy-cars or anything. They just worked and hurried, and looked cross and didn't want little boys to get in their way.

Big Sister? Dear me, how she was crying! She held her little clean handkerchief, folded in a neat square and not for all the tall buildings in the town would she open it and wipe away her tears.

She Cried and Cried. She had on a smart little gingham dress and blue socks and neat little sandals and a round hat with a blue ribbon on it—and she cried and cried.

Her name, she said, was Mary Ellen, but what her last name was no human being could understand, for when poor Mary Ellen got that far she was always crying so hard that she simply couldn't do anything but stammer and sob.

And the more you asked her, the harder she cried. And the crowd gathered.

Old gentlemen with sticks and brand-new straw hats stopped and coughed and wiped their own eyes. Neat, capable business women halted and tried to comfort Mary Ellen, and old ladies went almost frantic, trying to understand Mary Ellen when she said her best to tell her last name.

And Little Brother hung tight to Mary Ellen's starched blue gingham frock, and his eyes grew rounder and rounder and not one word could he speak—no, though his life depended on it.

"And all at once there was a cry and through the crowd burst a little flapper—yes, that's what she looked like. Short skirts and bobbed hair and a smart hat tilted over one eye, but oh, how pale she was and how her lips trembled!

"Mary Ellen!" she cried, and there was something in her voice that brought the tears to your eyes no matter how old or how world-hardened you were.

"We've Found You!" "Mary Ellen! Little Brother!" and there was on her knees on the dirty sidewalk, and the two children were in her arms all at once and they were laughing and kissing, and crying and laughing—but Mary Ellen never dropped her little prim-folded handkerchief—not she. She took it by one corner and wiped the flapper's face.

"Don't cry, Mamma," she said. "You aren't lost any more—we've found you."

And Mamma laughed and Mary Ellen laughed, and Little Brother laughed, and the crowd laughed and the world that had been so dark and full of despair a minute before was bright and full of sunshine.

And they went away together, Mamma and Mary Ellen and Little Brother—Mary Ellen on one side and Little Brother on the other.

Oh, Mary Ellen, my dear, my dear! I hope she will always find you somewhere, somehow, no matter how lost you are—the little gay mother who bore you.

And Little Brother—don't you ever let Mary Ellen get you lost again, will you? Not even when she grows to be a woman. It's a terrible thing to be lost, isn't it, Little Brother—I hope you will never dream of it, not even in your deepest sleep—again.

KATHARINE NEWLIN BURT

CHAPTER XIX.

Reaping the Whirlwind.

THE "Sophie girl" stayed perforce where Q had left her, and her astonished senses gradually composed themselves. She had been snatched up out of her own purposes as by a whirlwind, and constrained to an objective contemplation which in a few dazed moments, showed her the fairly volcanic abyss she had escaped. Nights of tossing, aching sleeplessness, days of relentless persecution, pain of heart and utterance of personal failure—for she had believed that Laurie's love would need only a sight of hers for its renewal—such hours and such pangs and fears, turned to a monotony of work in kitchen and dining room, had jangled the girl out of her dreams, and it is precisely when such habitual dreamers are so rudely waked that they embrace poverty and disaster. Her attempt to educate herself, to reach up to Laurie's level, had failed, all that was vulgar and commonplace in her inheritance and circumstance threw her back violently upon such consolation as the salesman's gibberish had to offer. Not good enough for Laurie, she was at least good enough for the handsome Rupert Seaman. The wife of a Benton would scarcely prove a less damaged vessel than the adventuring heroine of the drummer's romance.

That enchanted forest of which poor exquisite Sophie, with her startled eyes was a born denizen, was no training school for the main street of Sluysenkill or for the lobby of the River Hotel. When a Prince had alighted at her house, Sophie was ready; the Prince having thrust her out of fairy land, she fell against a ragged and sordid reality with all the violence of her rejection.

There is a theory abroad that goes by the precious name of realism, and which dogmatically asserts, in many diverse ways, that the mole on a lady's cheek is more real than the dimple; that, to be honest, one must pluck the wings from a butterfly and make notes on its crawling powers; that marriage is a matter of morning yawns rather than midnight kisses; that life walks attentively beside the gutter and not along the front of palaces; that, in short, a man's big toe is as important a moment as his craving for beauty. But surely, whatever chances and changes mortify and afflict our physical lives, the life of our thought may always be a journey of enchantment. If we are in a department store and travel thereto in a subway, clinging to a strap, nevertheless, we remain eternally seekers of buried treasure; if we wash the baby's underclothes and make its bed, Mary, the Madonna must have done no less; yet what we remember is that she "carried his sayings in her heart." Perhaps a baby's first recognizing smile is melodrama, but it is at least as real as his colic. All of which is to defend a predilection, a realist would doubtless find greater profit in watching Mrs. Huggs' cleaning her doormat than in watching Mrs. Huggs' doormat.

And they went away together, Mamma and Mary Ellen and Little Brother—Mary Ellen on one side and Little Brother on the other.

Oh, Mary Ellen, my dear, my dear! I hope she will always find you somewhere, somehow, no matter how lost you are—the little gay mother who bore you.

against her bonds. Her heart swelled, tears fell from her eyes. Q was her god. She could have followed him to the world's end. She would now have kissed his strong, gentle, restraining hands. She was safe, silent, hid from persecution, from passion, from ugly opportunity—love's prisoner, a prisoner of hope. Would Laurie come? Leave that to Q! She looked at her shabby little leather bag, caught up in the whirlwind that had caught her and now rolled over on its side in a corner of the room, and she wondered quivering how she could ever have packed it for so mad a purpose. To be lifted forcibly and tied up was a marvelous clarifier. It would seem, of one's imagination. Here she, Sophie, safe, sane, and clean, waiting for her love, when, by now, left to her own will, she would be traveling through the dust in Rupert Seaman's car, with his arm about her and a sick, hot memory and dread of kisses. What hardening of her imagination, what dissociation of her very personality had left her free to such intentions? Rupert, by now, had gone off, alone and angry, to console himself with less uncertain adventures. The sounds of the street rattled and hummed across her dazed consciousness. Below her, Mariana Benton stepped here and there from closet to bureau, getting herself ready for her evening off. Now she had pulled up a chair. She was probably preparing to curl her hair. She looked at the clock. Presently drifted in at Q's window. Sophie waited, wishing that she could get rid of her gas, which was beginning to be very uncomfortable. She would not cry out now; Q might hear her. She began to work with her long, thin lips and jaw to loosen the scarf. My, but he was clever at tying a persch up!

Mariana, bent, went out of her room and banged the door. She would be going out, thought Sophie, with her young man, the drug-store clerk. Mariana had always been shrewd and sensible and kind, even to a prospective stepmother. That had a vast amount of philosophy, that curled, manicured, indifferent being. There would never be a folly in Mariana's life—nor a flight. Sophie watched Q's curtains trail sluggishly in and out across the sill. The smell of scorched hair persisted. Mariana must have all but burnt off her hair. There would never be a smell a wisp of smoke; some blackened fragments drifted across the open square of sky. Sophie straightened a little in her chair and stared at the thrilling black bits. They looked like burnt lace, pieces of lace curtain. Another and denser scarf of smoke was sucked in at the window. It had a certain heat. Something was burning down below in Mariana's room, her curling-iron heater attached to the gas jet. A burning near the window curtain on the bureau—that was Q—Mariana had gone out five minutes ago. Sophie thought dazedly that she ought to give an alarm.

The alarm was given by a small boy in the street who, five slow, queer minutes later, shrieked out, "Fire! Fire!" That cry took a sharp stitch in Sophie's heart. The hotel was burning. Inside, along the hall, heater attached to the gas jet. A burning near the window curtain on the bureau—that was Q—Mariana had gone out five minutes ago. The alarm was given by a small boy in the street who, five slow, queer minutes later, shrieked out, "Fire! Fire!" That cry took a sharp stitch in Sophie's heart. The hotel was burning. Inside, along the hall, heater attached to the gas jet. A burning near the window curtain on the bureau—that was Q—Mariana had gone out five minutes ago. Sophie thought dazedly that she ought to give an alarm.

Fashion News Notes

PARIS.—A comparatively small, untrimmied turban was worn on the streets recently for the first time. Fashioned of velvet in delectable maroon brown, it fit the head closely, rising high in front by grace of a softly crushed band. Over the right and behind the left ear the velvet was gathered into loose knots. It is exactly the hat for the woman who dislikes very large hats.

NEW YORK.—The old-fashioned lace mitts which Paris resurrected earlier in the season, are offered today in New York. They were originated to form, a conventional little bridge between the very short sleeve and the too great expanse of bare arm. The mitts of today do not rest much in shape or design from those which grandmother wore. They come in black and white, as grandmother did and have one added tint—mist gray.

PARIS.—It is difficult to separate the cape, overskirt and hat veil from another in today's latest creation from the Rue de la Paix. The costume begins with a trim little wide-skirted down of chiffon, in white, and entirely unadorned except for a wide, Quaker type of collar. With this rock a large black satin hat is worn. Over the hat is thrown a very wide lace mantilla, which droops down in back as a cape, covers half the hat as a veil and is brought across the front of the frock and fastened to the left hip as an overskirt.

NEW YORK.—Broadened stuffs of all kinds are to make evening affairs gorgeous this winter. Satins and velvets are being shown today in richer brocades than ever before, and in more daring combinations of color. One piece of cloth for example, is in deep apricot brocaded with vivid green. But of all the new materials, broadened crepe is the loveliest and most pliable.

compared the probable happy issue of his adventure with that other masterful beneficence concerning "Ma Shipper's daughter." "If I was only as good at rescuing men from myself as I am at rescuing ladies from themselves, I'd be a right successful feller," he decided, and said so to the waiter, who was relaxing on the cushioned seat. That strong, confident will of his tightened his grip on his aching heart. He had been "hurt bad" by Heloise. He had "sure done him up," but in spite of her, he would not let her. He would break her proud, high, cold and willful heart to his tenderness as he had gentled the mad-eyed broncs to his control. There had been moments when her eyes had been the eyes of a girlhood, sweet, frightened, unworldly. He would believe those eyes. He would believe those eyes. He would believe those eyes.

"Oh, yes! Certainly! Just like that!" I returned bitterly. "Including Chester, I suppose."

"Especially Chester. I hate him." "A nice time to find it out! What's the idea, Norrie?"

"Nothing," replied the bewildering rebel. "I hate him for—oh, just for wanting to marry me."

"See here, Norrie Jermy," said I authoritatively. "You can't pull this sort of thing just on a bunch of hate. You're either going to produce a sane reason or you're coming with me now."

"Has it got to be sane," she answered dreamily. "Suppose I were married already?"

"You Norrie! A secret marriage. I don't believe it."

There is a clear honesty about Eleanor Jermy which makes anything furtive or underhand in her attitude toward real things unthinkable.

"No; it isn't a marriage, exactly. But it might as well be. I never could get away from it. Never! Not if I married Chester a hundred times over."

Was he there at the church?

That "he" never meant Chester Lipscomb; not in that tone! I appreciated that and answered, before I could catch myself.

"Yes."

A swift radiance intensified the loveliness of the bride's face. "Oh, Vix. Did he send me a message?"

Suddenly I felt sorry for our wedding party; I knew from that moment it was a hopeless case. I also felt wrathful.

"So this is a put-up job," I accused her. "Don't you think it's pretty raw to—"

"The message; his message!" she beamed. Then, as I shook my head she continued: "It wasn't put up. I hadn't seen him nor heard from him. Not for months. Oh, it's been long!"

THE INDISSOLUBLE BO

NINE minutes had passed since the tower clock boomed high noon. The organist was harmoniously killing time. The ushers were striving to look easy and unconcerned. The congregation was beginning to rustle and whisper and I was sharing the incipient nervousness since, as best man, it was my responsibility to put the wedding through without a mishap, and the absence of the bride was a decided impediment to my plans. My cousin, Chester Lipscomb, who was supposedly the person most interested, was taking it coolly, in that immovably self-confident, self-satisfied manner of his, as if proceeding upon some superior assurance that nothing in which he was concerned could go far wrong.

Well, nothing ever had. That is why the match was deemed such a good one for Eleanor Jermy. If I maintained my private misgivings about mating of the girl's vivid, mirthful, adventurous romanticism with Chester's solemn rigidity of spirit, it was not my business as best man to voice them. My business was to get that twin safely married.

At sixteen minutes and six seconds (by my stopwatch) past 12, the sexton brought me a note which read:

"Dear Vix—It's all off. I simply can't go through with it. NORRIE."

Through the agency of a hastily inspired usher the news was gradually disseminated through the church that the bride gown had suffered a last-minute injury of a serious though not necessarily fatal nature, while I was speed-limiting to Jermy's house in a car which I had commandeered from the engine of the line. The running board was unsuitably decorated with a young man whom I had never seen until he attached himself to it at the moment of starting. He was spare and lithe and deep-browed by a sun harsher than ours, and there was a hard-controlled excitement in his curiously luminous eyes.

"She isn't coming, is she?" he demanded. Then, reading my expression and in a flash of triumph, "I knew she wouldn't."

"Where do you come in on this?" I retorted.

All the answer that I got, as he dropped with sure-footed nonchalance from the speeding car was, "I'm at the Pioneers' Club when she wants me."

A flustered maid admitted me to the house and piloted me to Eleanor's room. As I entered a strange expectancy died out of the bride's face.

"Oh! It's only you, Vix. I thought—"

"Think afterward. I'll give you three minutes to be in the car."

"There isn't going to be any afterward. Go back and get rid of them, Vix."

"Oh, yes! Certainly! Just like that!" I returned bitterly. "Including Chester, I suppose."

"Especially Chester. I hate him." "A nice time to find it out! What's the idea, Norrie?"

"Nothing," replied the bewildering rebel. "I hate him for—oh, just for wanting to marry me."

A bough, riven by the thunder, the elm covered Calvin S.

There was a heart-wrenching quiver in her voice. "Then something told me he was here. That's the way it happened with us at the first. So I knew I couldn't go through with it with Chester."

I surrendered. "I'll give you the message when I come back. I promised."

"Come soon," she whispered. A sort of well-bred social riot followed my return to the church, in which the coolest figure was the bridegroom. You might

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB.

TO THE DEPTHS OF DOGOLGY!

IT was away back in 1899 that State Senator William Goebel seized the Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky and, so doing, split the party in the State to flinders. The feuds born of that fight are still alive today after the lapse of more than 22 years. It was my fortune as a reporter from a Louisville paper to follow the story of the conflict—Goebel's nomination, the split in the organization, his defeat on the face of the returns at the general election, his contest before the Legislature, his assassination, and, finally, the indictments, captures and trials of the men charged with conspiring to murder him.

What sticks most vividly in my memory; though, when now I hark back to those days, is a thing which happened in the campaign preceding the election. Theodore Hallam, perhaps the greatest orator in a State of orators, and almost the quickest-thinking man on his feet, I believe, that ever lived anywhere, having bolted the nomination of Goebel, took the stump against him. The seceding wing of the party picked on Hallam to open its fight, and chose the town of Bowling Green as a fitting place for the firing of the first gun. Bowling Green being a town where the rebellion inside the Democratic ranks was widespread and vehement. But Goebel had his adherents there in plenty, too.

You could fairly smell trouble cooking on that August afternoon of 1899 when Hallam stood up in the packed, jammed courthouse to begin his speech. Hardly had he started when a local leader, himself a most handy person in a rough-and-tumble argument, heaved his bulk upward and stood upon the seat of his chair, towering high above the heads of those about him. Pound for pound, he was twice the size of the stumpy, shock-haired little Hallam, and he looked three times as formidable.

"I want to ask you a question!" he demanded in a roar like the roar of one of Bashan's bulls.

One third of the crowd yelled: "Go ahead!" The other two-thirds yelled: "Throw him out!" And a few enthusiastic spirits suggested the expediency of destroying the gentleman utterly.

With a wave of his hand Hallam stilled the tumult.

"Let it be understood now and hereafter that this is to be no joint debate," he said, in his rather high-pitched voice. "My friends have arranged for the use of this building this afternoon and I intend to be the only speaker. But it is a tenet of our political faith that in a Democratic gathering no man who calls himself a Democrat shall be denied the right to be heard. I gather that the gentleman desires to ask me a question. If the gentleman will be content to ask his question, whatever it is, and to abide by my answer to it, I am willing that he should speak, and I crave silence from all believers in the right of free speech while he is asking it."

"That suits me," proclaimed the interrupter. "My question is this: Didn't you say at the Louisville convention not four weeks ago that if the Democrats of Kentucky, in convention assembled, nominated a yaller dog for Governor you would vote for him?"

"I did," said Hallam, calmly.

"Well, then," whooped the heckler, eager now to press his seeming advantage, "in the face of that statement, why do you now repudiate the nominee of that convention and refuse to support him?"

For his part Hallam waited for perfect quiet and finally got it. "I admit," he stated, "that I said then what now I repeat, namely, that when the Democrats of Kentucky nominate a yaller dog for the governorship of this great State I mean to support him—but lower than that ye shall not drag me!"
